Canada's Military Manpower Drops to Lowest in 2 Years

WAITING FOR RETURN of young Mary Pennock are two-year-old brother, Jimmy, and surprise present

SHHH! DON'T TELL A SOLITARY SOUL

Three-Legged Surprise Awaits City Child After Leg Surgery

By MONTÉ ROBERTS

Shhh! Don't tell a soul, but there's a three-legged surprise waiting for four-year-old Mary Pennock when she returns to Victoria, two weeks from now, after an operation on her right leg at the Shriners Hospital, Portland.

Mary's surprise is also four years old. His name is Skipper, and he's a springer spaniel, of great dignity and friendliness.

Mary—everybody calls her Button, because that's what she's as cute as—is bound to be pleased as well as surprised. Because Skipper used to live near her home, 330 Niagara, and Button used to wish Skipper were her very own dog.

Both Have Overcome Handicaps

Button has had trouble with her right leg ever since she was a tiny baby. And Skipper lost one of his legs in an accident.

Both Button and Skipper have overcome their handicaps, so perhaps that's why they're so fond of each other.

How Skipper has now become Button's very own dog is one of those things which make life brighter for the SPCA and this newspaper.

Skipper's owners, who moved away from James Bay two years ago, brought him to the SPCA for adoption. Regrettably, they could no longer keep him.

So on Saturday, this newspaper ran Skipper's picture. Mrs. James Pennock, Button's mother, saw the photo, recognized the old pal, and the reunion was arranged.

Times to Run 'SPCA Guest List'

But don't tell a soul. This is to be a surprise for Button.

And the happy home secured for Skipper through this newspaper has engendered an idea.

The SPCA and the Times will team up to run a daily feature called "SPCA Guest List."

The list will describe the dogs "in residence" at the small animal shelter, 111 Wilson street.

It will be divided into two sections: "New arrivals" for the benefit of those who may have lost a pet which has turned up at the SPCA; and "ready for adoption," listing those dogs who are anxious for a new home.

The new Times-SPCA feature will appear daily on the comic page commencing Wednesday.

Corpse Hauled By Heels

(Special to the Times)

ALBERNI—The RCMP here is conducting a round-the-clock search for ghoulish vandals who Sunday night or early Monday morning raided a cemetery, dragged a body from a grave and desecrated several graves.

Residents were angry and horrified as police revealed the culprits—apparently drunk—pulled the corpse from its grave by tying a chain to its ankle.

The body was in the pauper's section of the Greenwood Cemetery.

CROSSES TORN

The unearthed body was left lying on the ground beside the grave.

In the veterans' section, 18 crosses were torn from grave-heads and placed to form barriers on the pathways between graves.

Flowers from graves were torn to pieces and tossed around the cemetery.

President of the Somass branch, Canadian Legion, said today he was "horrified. No one could do a worse thing than desecrate a grave, and the worst thing of all must be desecration of a veterans' plot."

APPALLED

Legion padre here, Rev. Glen Stevenson said "how terrible. I buried most of those boys up there."

Citizens of the area are appalled.

POLICE HAVE LEADS

"It was done by somebody or persons who had been drinking," the RCMP here said today.

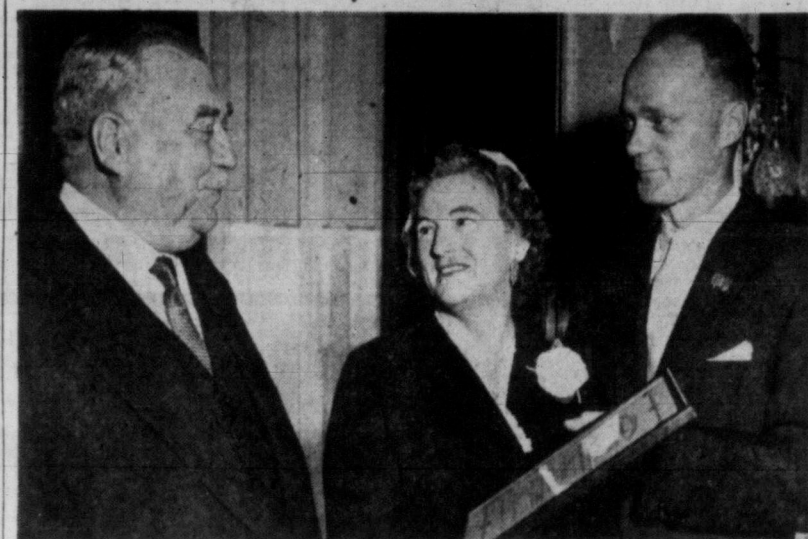

"Foul" said the constable in charge. "The vandals of any one who would do such a thing is a monster."

RCMP have leads, and promised today to follow the matter through to its conclusion.

RCMP said tire marks indicated those responsible drove a car into the cemetery.

France Will Fight Nasser Move To Have UN Debate Egypt Charges

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—French delegate Bernard Cornut-Gentille said today his country will fight Egypt's attempt to have the United Nations Security Council debate Egyptian charges against France in the Suez Canal controversy.

Egypt has issued its own call for security council intervention in the dispute. It came after Britain and France had asked the council to consider the situation created by Egypt's July 26 nationalization of the 103-mile waterway.

The council meets Wednesday for the first time on the Suez crisis.

PEACE MENACED

U.S. State Dept. Foreign Affairs Minister Christian Pineau told the National Assembly's committee on foreign affairs that if Egypt's President Nasser has the impression he can continue with impunity on his present course "he could menace the peace of the world."

The council's first task will be to decide whether to debate the complaints together or separately, and if separately in what order.

Teen-Agers Stage Rock-Roll Rumpus In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two thousand Vancouver teen-agers smashed benches, screamed and fought Monday night as they turned a rock 'n' roll concert into a near-riot.

The star of the show, singer "Little Richard," was rescued by police after a crowd of juveniles mobbed him.

"The minute he arrived," said one schoolgirl, "it was wild. The kids were climbing all over the place. They were screaming. We all love 'Little Richard.' He's a real crazy cat."

Colwood Corner Crash

At least one person was injured when a car and truck collided near Colwood corner on the old Island Highway at press time. Further details were not available.

Army's Top Regiment 1,600 Short

BY DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Strength of Canada's armed forces has fallen to its lowest figure in two years.

The downward trend in service manpower comes at a time when the RCAF is looking for more personnel for three new CF-100 jet fighter squadrons and the navy needs more sailors to man its new destroyer escorts.

A defence department spokesman said the strength of the forces at the end of July—latest figure available—was 115,982.

The breakdown: Navy, 18,824; army, 47,397; RCAF, 49,761.

Toward the close of 1954, service manpower stood at about 117,000. In March of the same year it was 112,500.

120,000 Ceiling

The manpower ceiling set for the armed forces is 120,000—20,000 for the navy, 49,000 for the army and 51,000 for the air force.

At the end of March last year, total strength stood at 118,077, the highest figure reached since the defence build-up started with outbreak of the Korean War in 1950.

The recent decline has been most evident in the navy and the air force. Since the start of the year, the navy has had a net loss of about 400 and the air force of about 600. The army has gained about 200.

An army official said the army is trying hard to recruit men, especially in the infantry, but is having trouble. He added that recruiting always appears to be slower in summer than in winter and particularly in prosperous times.

Everybody Used

The shortage of army manpower is shown in the strength of the Regiment of Canadian Guards. The regiment has four battalions which normally would have a strength of about 900 men each. But not one of the battalions has more than 500 men.

In a recent demonstration for the Toronto Board of Trade at Camp Petawawa, Ont., one of the guards battalions carried out a mock infantry attack in company strength. But instead of using only one company, it had to press the entire battalion into service because of the shortage of infantrymen.

The 1956-57 white paper on defence, issued by the government earlier this year, said: "Provision has been made for some increase in strength in the navy and air force."

Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, former chief of the army general staff and since his retirement a year ago one of the sternest critics of Canadian defence policy, maintains that the army is being deliberately held down in strength at the expense of a bigger RCAF establishment.

Three Bandits Charged In Vancouver Bank Job

VANCOUVER (CP)—Three men were charged today with armed robbery in connection with an $8,262 hold-up of an east-end branch of the Royal Bank of Canada Monday afternoon.

David Auld, 24; Harry Lyons, 33, and Carl Fundytus, 27, were to appear in police court later today.

Three armed bandits wearing black masks held 13 persons at bay while they rifled a cashier's till minutes before closing time.

All were arrested within two hours in an upstairs suite a few blocks from the robbed bank after a neighbor told police he had seen the men enter the building carrying what appeared to be a rifle wrapped in a blanket.

The wife of one of the three, arrested in a raid that resulted in recovery of all the money, will probably not be charged, police said.

The holdup, fourth in 10 years at the bank, was executed with exacting precision in about one minute, witnesses said.

The bandits' flight from the bank was punctuated by one warning pistol shot, which splintered a wooden bank counter and injured no one.

It was fired by a robber who stood near the bank entrance barking commands at the bank staff.

A second bandit, moved quickly into a teller's cage and scooped cash into a black bag, threatening teller Mrs. Betty Scott with a revolver.

Bank manager Phil Hoskins said that this bandit stumbled when vaulting over the counter and dropped his revolver.

The third bandit, who was seen running away from the bank, was not seen again.

The bank was closed for about an hour after the robbery.

Judge Delays Decision on Rock Workers

VANCOUVER (CP)—A British Columbia Supreme Court justice Monday reserved decision on an application to commit eight striking rock workers for contempt after questioning the right of foreign interests to dictate to laborers in B.C.

"I have no sympathy with the idea that somebody in a foreign land is going to dictate the interests of workers here," said Mr. Justice Harry Sullivan.

The eight are members of the Tunnel and Rockworkers Union of Canada, which is engaged in a jurisdictional fight with the International Hodcarriers and Laborers Union.

More than 2,000 rock workers are on strike throughout B.C. in support of the tunnel union's claim to recognition and six large construction projects have been affected.

The eight brought into court Monday have been picketing a hydro project at Upper Campbell Lake in defiance of an injunction obtained two weeks ago by the companies.

They are Steve Chalanski, William Windsor, Roy Finch, T. Farrell, Russell Davis, Fergus Corkery, C. Mage and Joe Loftus.

MOST UNIONS

When Mr. Justice Sullivan argued the rights of B.C. workers against dictation by United States unions, A. Campbell DesBrisay, council for the Construction Association of British Columbia, said most unions in the province are in the same position.

"It applied in the days of coolie labor too," replied Mr. Justice Sullivan.

He said it was "most unsatisfactory" that the other side is not represented. "I almost have to take on the job of acting as counsel for them."

Mr. DesBrisay said there has been a "flagrant contempt" which should not be passed over.

Mr. Justice Sullivan questioned whether there had been any intention on the part of the rock workers to flout the court order.

Counsel for the companies said he will apply for permission to serve notices of contempt proceedings "by substitution" on William Hunchuck, secretary, and Arthur Andres, president of the tunnel workers union, who he said "are apparently evading notice."

Canine Round-Up Under Study In Esquimalt

Problem of dogs without licences was pondered Monday night by Esquimalt Council.

According to councillors J. E. Carey and G. K. Sumner, "only a very small minority" of dog-owners buy licences for their dogs. The situation is now "a little beyond" the licence inspector, said Reeve A. C. Wurtel.

Council authorized the reeve to investigate a possible agreement with the SPCA for rounding up strays.

Esquimalt "might have to set up our own pound," said Coun. James Bryant.

MISSING since Aug. 7 and until two days ago listed as drowned in Ontario's Oblong Lake, William Gray returned to his Toronto home Saturday, where his wife and two children "mourned" his "death."

$2 'Give and Take' Deal Puts Householders In Esquimalt on Municipal Voters' List

If you want to get on the municipal voters' list in Esquimalt this year, you'll have to offer clerk J. W. Allen $2.

He'll refuse it—but your name will be added to the list. The offer-and-refusal decision, soon to become a by-law, was made at a meeting of Esquimalt Council Monday night.

Council has long been plagued by $5 road and $2 poll taxes, abolished in the municipality earlier this year. But they are still in by-law will allow Mr. Allen to refuse it.

Householders wishing to vote in the December municipal election must sign the necessary declaration at the municipal hall by Oct. 31.

According to the act, every household must "pay or tender" $2.

Since the road and poll taxes are discriminatory and a "nuisance," council has agreed to abolish the $2 levy.

EXPERT ON SOVIETS HERE

Russia Wary of War Because of Oil Need

Oil-hungry Russia won't take a chance on starting another war until she gets enough oil supplies to meet her own requirements.

This opinion was expressed Monday night by Canadian Soviet authority Dr. William J. Rose at a meeting sponsored by the University Extension Association at Victoria College. More than 200 attended.

Dr. Rose, professor of Slavonic studies at the University of British Columbia, said the Middle East's oil is one of the reasons the Soviet Union is so interested in the Suez Canal situation.

SHORT OF WAR

He said Russia must get oil from outside her borders, at least until more is discovered in Russia.

"Russia will continue to exploit this interest and to encourage Arab nationalism at any cost short of war," the speaker said.

Other views expressed by Dr. Rose:

- On Cyprus—"As yet Russia is not interested in Cyprus for fear of offending the Turks."
- On competitive co-existence—"We must never compromise Europe's 90 millions for the sake of peace."
- On higher education—"Russia's education system is a tradition of 'humanism'."

Craigflower Site Urged As New Park

Capital Improvement District Commission will recommend to the provincial cabinet that Craigflower Peninsula be taken over and operated as a park by the commission.

The move was forecast several weeks ago.

Commission chairman, deputy provincial secretary R. A. Pennington said Monday, the commission felt the privately-owned area should be acquired now.

Proposals for future development include clearing of beaches, and boating areas, erection of playgrounds and picnic areas.

Caddy 'All One Fish'; Couple Really Scared

Caddy has been seen again. It happened about noon Monday near Trial Island.

Visual victims were Gerald Kemperink, out from Holland just four months ago, and Mrs. Sabina von de Witz-Krebs, here a year from Germany.

Neither had ever heard of Victoria's famed sea monster Cadborosaurus.

Caddy came within 30 feet of the boat, the pair reported.

"I saw it was all one fish and really got scared," said Mr. Kemperink.

He speeded up the engine and headed for shore.

10,000 Homeless After Hurricane

BAINBRIDGE, Fla. (AP)—Hurricane Flossie subsided into a vast drought-breaking rain-storm as it moved slowly over South Georgia today after causing nine deaths and some property damage in its journey across the Gulf of Mexico and the Northwest Florida coast.

The once-dangerous storm was just west of Albany, in Southwest Georgia, with its top winds at 50 miles. This is short of full gale force and only half of the velocity reached before it moved inland.

It continued heading north-east at about 10 miles an hour.

The Red Cross said that nearly 10,000 persons were housed Monday night in temporary shelters in six northwest Florida counties. The agency set up shelters as far inland as 100 miles east of Pensacola.

The hurricane left floods in its wake on the outskirts of New Orleans. During the height of the storm the tides were more than five feet above normal.

B.C. Premier May Become Highest Paid

Premier W. A. C. Bennett soon may become Canada's highest-paid provincial premier.

The premier is reported to favor a boost in salary for cabinet ministers from $7,500 to $10,000 and for himself from $9,000 to $15,000.

The premier also receives the $3,600 seasonal indemnity paid to all legislative members, which would mean a total annual pay of $18,600 if legislation is enacted.

The Premier of Quebec receives a basic salary of $16,000, but receives no indemnity.

Other provincial premiers receive: Ontario, $14,000; Manitoba, $13,000; Alberta, $12,000; New Brunswick, $9,500; Newfoundland, $10,000; Nova Scotia, $12,600; Prince Edward Island, $7,000, and Saskatchewan, $12,000.

Twenty-seven HMCS Venture cadets are receiving over 2,400 hours of flying and ground school instruction at the Victoria Flying Club, Patricia Bay airport.

According to Dave Filby, chief flying instructor of the club, the course is expected to run until next January, at which time the cadets will proceed to Pensacola, Florida, for advanced training.

Ike May Unveil New Farm Plans In Tonight's Answer to Adlai

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower flies to Peoria, Ill., today for tonight's first major farm speech of his re-election campaign. Adlai E. Stevenson challenged him in advance to spell out precisely what he has done to fulfill his 1952 farm pledges.

The speech and visit to mid-west will:

- Give Eisenhower his first opportunity to answer Stevenson's charges that the administration has brought about a "farm depression."
- Provide the President a platform for announcing any new administration plans to raise farm income.

STEVENSON, speaking Monday night in Oklahoma City, maintained that in 1952 Mr. Eisenhower promised farmers to continue price supports at 90 per cent of parity and later said he would work for full 100 per cent parity. Yet, said Stevenson, the administration has fulfilled neither of these pledges but has shown "neglect and indifference" to the farmer.

Husband, Wife Slain With Ax In Fashionable Quebec Suburb

SILLERY, Que. (CP)—A 55-year-old man and his wife were found dead today in their fashionable home in this Quebec city suburb. Police said they were hacked to death with an axe.

Dead are: Austin J. Walsh, 55, machinery broker's employee, and his wife, 48.

Capt. J. Alphonse Matte of Quebec provincial police homicide squad said the bodies were found by a friend who wondered why Walsh did not show up for work this morning.

He said the man entered the home and found the bodies of the couple lying in pools of blood.

The home was a scene of horror, he said, with blood splattered over floor and walls.

Capt. Matte said Walsh's automobile has disappeared. He described the car as a dark blue 1955 Chevrolet bearing licence number 56-980.

Capt. Matte said anyone found in the vehicle should be arrested on sight or detained pending arrival of police.

Walsh was reading his newspaper in the kitchen and Mrs. Walsh was in the bathroom at the time of the attack, police said.

Chance for Senate Reform

OTTAWA OBSERVERS ARE speculating on the possible appointment of Mr. George Drew to the Senate. Sixteen vacancies exist in the Upper Chamber and some are expected to be filled before Christmas.

If Mr. Drew's health and vitality are restored, he would be an excellent appointee. Not only has his career in public office marked him as a man of distinguished service to Canada, his criticism of the Senate itself would make him a valuable influence in that body.

A little more than a year ago Mr. Drew had occasion to discuss the Upper Chamber. At that time it contained 26 vacant seats—some of them left empty for an unreasonably long time. The then Leader of the Opposition in the Commons gave sound warning that unless improvements were made in it, the people of Canada would finally abolish the Senate.

One of the obvious improvements would be a system of appointment to make the Senate more fully representative of the life of Canada, political and otherwise. It is now so overwhelmingly dominated by Liberals that it cannot hope to function as it should.

The selection of Mr. Drew, combined with that of Mr. Hackett, a life-long Conservative chosen by the Prime Minister among the appointments he made in July, 1955, would at least indicate that Liberal Party membership is not a prerequisite. Nor should the choice of men or women from other parties end there. As an agency of Government, the Senate needs broader representation. Since substantial elements in our population endorse the policies of the CCF and Social Credit, surely they, too, deserve recognition.

Beyond that the Prime Minister has a broad field from which to choose entirely outside political ranks. There are men and women contributing greatly to Canadian life in science, arts, industry, education, the professions, and many other constructive spheres who could give strength to the agency of government created as a chamber of studied second thought.

It is 35 years since Prime Minister King promised reform. Demands for it have risen and fallen since that date. The actual constitutional issue involved may be difficult. The practical means of effecting change are not, however, impossible. The Senate can be altered by appointments which transform it from its present overwhelmingly Liberal Party character.

With sixteen vacancies to fill, an infusion of new elements could start it toward the recovery of public respect it so obviously requires.

If changes are not made, then the Senate may view with some misgivings the evolutionary fate of those creatures which failed to adjust themselves to new environments. They become extinct.

Top of Them All

AS THE FIRST NATIVE CANADIAN to win the U.S. National women's amateur golf championship, Marlene Stewart has established her own special place in our hall of fame.

Miss Stewart had already gained a formidable reputation, having won, among other top laurels, the British Amateur in 1953. Her record this year includes seven national and other championships besides last weekend's triumph. She has won almost every major women's title in the world.

Not since Sandy Sommerville won the U.S. Amateur in 1932 has such a golfing honor come to Canada.

Like most real champions, Marlene preserves a quietness and modesty about her achievements that adds further to her popularity. At five foot two, and 115 pounds, she demonstrates that mere size does not mean everything in sport. Her coordination, timing and above all her sheer grit are the secrets of her success. It took championship calibre to overcome a four-hole deficit last Saturday and sweep to a brilliant victory.

Marlene's expressed determination to "stay an amateur all my life" seems to put the whole picture in perspective. In the classic meaning of amateurism she plays for the love of the game. That, too, adds further lustre to her brilliance as a Canadian sports heroine.

They're Still at It

IT IS DISTURBING, BUT HARDLY surprising to learn that the Russians are still among assiduously on Canadian security secrets from the protected vantage point of their embassy in Ottawa. It is admittedly the duty of an ambassador to seek to learn all that he can of the country to which he is assigned. But when he or his assistants try to subvert Canadians, to encourage treason among the people whose guests they are, the limits of decency have been exceeded.

This was notoriously the case in the famous Gouzenko espionage incident of the immediate post-war days. The more recent affair involving information on Canada's new jet fighter is equally reprehensible although less serious. The case is particularly unpleasant in view of the fact that the recovery work was going on even while various Soviet ministers were touring the country and urging Canadians to greater friendship and exchange of technological knowledge.

It is fortunate that the Canadian civilian concerned knew little of the information the Russians sought, and that he saw the implications of the web into which he was being drawn before it was too late. His experience will be a warning to all others in positions of trust where Canadian security is concerned. The cold war is still very much alive and being waged on all fronts.

Preparing for Halloween

THE CITY POLICE COMMISSION has before it certain suggestions for handling rowdy mobs on Halloween. The proposal has been advanced that the regular force be augmented by the addition of service and other groups to prevent the recurrence of ugly situations such as that prevailing on Yates Street last year.

It is unfortunate, and certainly no credit to the city, that it must make special provisions to cope with hoodlums on a night which was once reserved largely for children's fun. Unfortunate or not, it is necessary to have the authorities take more drastic action than was the case in 1955.

Last Halloween saw a condition

Suspended Publication

IT IS TYPICAL OF THE EAST-west situation today that thousands of copies of magazines destined to explain Russia to the U.S., and other thousands to do the reverse job, are withheld from distribution by international red tape.

It was last December that the two countries agreed to exchange propaganda magazines—the U.S. to distribute "Amerika" in Russia and the Soviet Union to issue "USSR" on this side of the Atlantic. By July huge supplies of both publications were ready for shipment overseas to explain each nation to the other and thereby foster better relations.

But a hitch developed when the U.S. State Department became worried about the cut the Soviet distribution agency was going to take from the sale price of "Amerika." The matter has been tangled in negotiation ever since. And the prospective readers in each country must await a solution to the problem before they are allowed to read of the cultural advantages of the other.

It appears to be a situation made to measure for Gilbert and Sullivan, except that truth, while stranger than fiction, is also frequently more tragic.

Engineer Shortage 'Overestimated'—C. D. Howe

FROM WASHINGTON By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP

The Stevenson Formula

ADLAI STEVENSON and his vast entourage have been in and out of Washington during this past week, exuding confidence at every pore. Politicians exude confidence as instinctively as cows give milk. But in this case the confidence seems genuine—at least to the extent that Stevenson and his advisers really do believe that he has a chance to beat Dwight D. Eisenhower, and a pretty good chance at that. Moreover, they have a shrewdly fashioned formula for achieving this David-and-Goliath miracle. The first part of the formula calls for Stevenson to stage, as a historian in his entourage put it, "the most energetic campaign in the history of the American Presidency."

Joseph

From here on out, Stevenson will be here, there, and everywhere, following a staggering schedule of speech-making, hand-shaking, and fence-mending. These days, moreover, Stevenson seems actually to enjoy the man-killing task of campaigning. Whereas in 1952, he was given to asking plaintively "do I really have to do that?" he is now a bear for punishment, according to his aides.

The purpose of this fierce expenditure of energy is not only to get Stevenson's name before the voters, but also to identify Stevenson and the relatively sedentary Eisenhower thus subtly underlining the health issue. And another purpose is to identify Stevenson to the maximum extent with local Democratic candidates, and thus with the Democratic party.

On the Run

For the Stevenson strategists, citing the three-year Democratic trend culminating in the Maine victory, are certain that, on a straight party basis, the Democrats have the Republicans on the run. "We'll take both houses, I'm dead sure of that," one top Democrat remarked. "The only question is whether Ike can survive his party's defeat."

By the same token, every effort will also be made by Stevenson and the astute Stevenson propagandists to identify the President with the Republican party. Another part of the Stevenson formula as applied to Eisenhower is to bear down hard on the "part-time President" line, and, of course, to centre the attack on Vice-President Nixon as the President's potential successor.

The Stevenson formula also calls for making full use of the Democratic party's ambassadors to special voting still unquestionably the front runner, but not to the point where the Republicans can afford to sit back happily on their haunches.

He is well aware, as he was not in 1952, that incomparably the greatest asset of the Democrats is the image of the party, among important voting groups, as the party of the "little guys against the big shots." If being the champion of the people requires a mile more demagoguing than in 1952, so be it.

Add the inherent advantages which a Democrat enjoys, notably the Southern vote, and the Stevenson victory formula looks rather formidable. The popular President is still unquestionably the front runner, but not to the point where the Republicans can afford to sit back happily on their haunches.

Expose Dishonesty

Although I cannot be in British Columbia in the near future to add my voice to that of those people who still cherish honesty, integrity and spirituality, I hope that your paper will continue to expose the dishonesty and the hypocrisy in the Social Credit government. It is very disappointing to learn that 46 per cent of the voting public of B.C. apparently tolerate "spiritual wickedness in high places."

Since coming to New Brunswick from B.C. about two weeks ago, I have come to appreciate to some extent the sincerity and the deep Christian conviction of many of the Maritime people. They are not rich materially and may not be progressive from an economic standpoint, but they are rich in character and spirit.

Premier Bennett is a product of this Atlantic province. Possibly he left here as a rebel and went west to make his fortunes, both financial and political. He seems to have got his reward but it's the sort of reward that turns a person's head. Where a man's treasure is, there will his heart be also, is our Lord's warning to those who seek the wrong rewards.

Experiment on Rats

From Atlantic City, N.J., comes news, reported in Sept. 19 issue of the Victoria Daily Times, that two army researchers have found a possible lead towards conditioning people against the generally fatal "wound shock" which accompanies severe war and accident injuries.

Rats "were conditioned" by giving them a series of electric shocks. They were then subjected to terrific tumbling in a special drum, which was whirled 500 times. The rats dropping from the top to the bottom of the drum with each turn.

After this sadistic performance we are told that since "electric shock is not a procedure to be lightly applied to a normal person" less drastic methods would have to be sought where applications to humans are concerned.

Of what value then was this experiment? We may assume that the necessity for care, re the giving of electric shocks to persons was known to the researchers. Nevertheless they willfully subjected terrified, helpless rats to a frightful and injurious ordeal.

No knowledge of real and lasting value can ever be obtained by means of callous cruelty to the sub-human kingdom.

Struggle Beginning

I would appreciate space to express my sincere thanks to all those who in any way aided my campaign in Oak Bay. I congratulate Mr. Gibbs upon having served as an MLA so as to maintain the support of a majority of Oak Bay voters. May he have a successful term in the next House.

I would emphasize that the CCF has faced far bigger odds than it faces in B.C. today. It is for practical purposes the sole Opposition in the House. As such it must make the most of the vote maintained through the years, is the only party with enough dedicated and consistent support to defeat Social Credit, and bring social justice, safety and sanity into B.C. politics.

People of liberal thought must now choose to support the CCF or by indecision to aid Social Credit.

I appeal to those who love liberty, care for humanity, and respect our parliamentary institutions: now is the time to stand up for your ideals; support the CCF, the only group now able to carry on the battle successfully.

I would like to meet those in Oak Bay riding who supported me. If you voted CCF I invite you to phone me at 46226, and let me thank you personally. We need your help in the struggle just beginning.

Slanted News?

I was impressed with the kindly attitude of Premier Bennett when he clasped your newspaper among the metropolitan press after his recent victory at the polls.

I was greatly pleased that the public, in voting as it did, showed it was thinking for itself.

It is right that a newspaper should have an editorial policy, but when that policy is carried further, to the point of biased reporting to shape public opinion, the public is wronged. There have been many instances in the recent past, politically, of such unfair behavior on your part.

Reporting should be fair to the public's intelligence. Yours has not been. We should have factual reporting. Actually, that is what we pay for. Nothing could be quite so black politically as you have chosen to portray our government in B.C. Possibly you will conclude that your own "chickens have come home to roost" in the quite sad debacle of your Liberal party. Many would vote as they did because your prejudices were too apparent.

Please shape a fair and constructive editorial and reporting policy for the future. The public's political thinking should not be at the whim of the two or three people who control your paper.

The noted economist, Stuart Chase, once wrote that he only "existed" when doing drudgery of any kind, and he classed as drudgery, among other items, the reading of newspapers. Might I suggest, you attempt to rise above such criticism.

F. T. WORTH.

2875 Ashley Road.

Criticism Over-Emphasized

I believe if the candidates of the opposing political parties had hammered away at their platforms, which were good ones, instead of concentrating on mud-slinging, they doubtless would have won more votes in Wednesday's election.

People are interested in hearing what a political party will do for them, not about the errors and shortcomings of opponents. Such points as 1. reduction of sales tax. 2. Modern housing for those of low income groups. 3. Publicly-owned natural gas distribution systems. 4. Relief of overcrowding in general hospitals. 5. Long-term low interest loans to B.C. farmers, together, especially with revision-of anti-dumping legislation to protect them from competition of cheap U.S. farm imports. These and a number of others would have captured their imagination, but instead, as soon as they picked up a newspaper they saw the Socrads and their policies criticized.

There were many fine candidates. I very much doubt if any provincial election ever had better, but owing to the type of campaigns waged, they did not have an opportunity of winning the votes to which they were entitled, which is regrettable because we do not now have a sufficient number of opposition members to make for good government.

Campaigns were presented like legal cases. There was no allowance for feelings and emotions, yet the majority of any population is stirred by feelings and does not think nor analyze.

D. S. ASHDOWN.

A Worthy Appeal

This letter is written in the hope that it may be read by some retired man or woman, or others who have a car, and who would be willing to give about three hours time on Wednesday afternoons assisting those who through accident or other causes are either totally blind, or so near total blindness that they are accepted as registered members of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Every Wednesday the White Cane Club meets at 1609 Blanshard, from 2 to 4 p.m. The meetings are of a social nature others are addressed by some well known person, and all are made interesting by the program committee, and before the close of each meeting afternoon tea is served.

A number of volunteer ladies and gentlemen now bring these blind people from their homes, and take them back again after the meetings, but two or three more volunteers are needed.

You will not be asked or expected to contribute one penny to the funds of the club. You will be amazed at the cheerfulness and courage of its members and you will return to your home realizing perhaps as never before what it would mean to you and your family, if you were to gradually or suddenly lose your sight.

If you will kindly phone, write or call, fullest details will be gladly given.

Cultural Cart Before Horse

From The Winnipeg Free Press

TWO news reports on Tuesday laid bare the bones of a problem that deserves more interest from Canadians than almost any other: how can we make our educational system more adequate to the needs of modern society? And how can we foster the full use of that educational system?

The two reports were these. A university president calculated that the present revenues, from all sources, of Canadian universities are $60 million a year. At the same time, the Canadian Arts Council recommended an expansion of CBC services which would entail raising the CBC's income, from taxes, to about $60 millions a year.

The Canadian Arts Council is a body more interested than any other in cultural achievement, in the fine flowers that grace a good educational system. Its wish to give the CBC more money springs from that entirely worthy interest. It wants the CBC to be able to provide full scope for Canadian talent to serve the Canadian public, both in entertainment and in the more high-brow cultural interests of the minority.

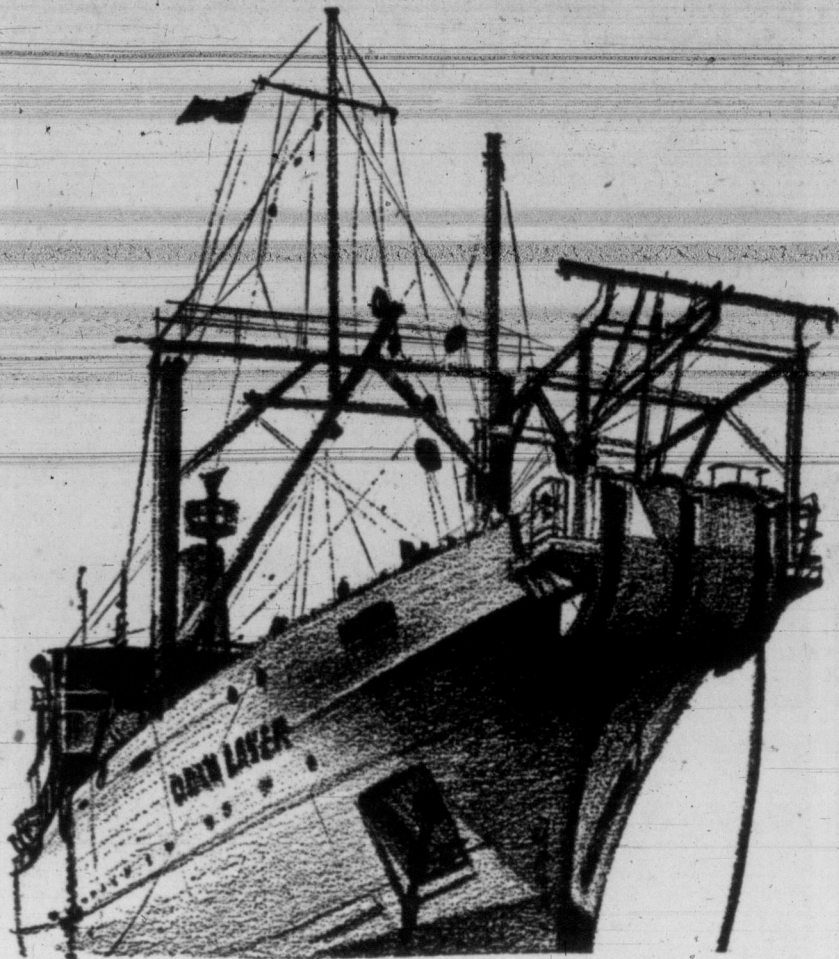

The aim is fine. But surely something has got badly out of proportion when the high-brows themselves want to spend as much on the CBC—that is, mainly, on entertainment—as is spent on the universities? It is, after all, the universities that are the soil of our intellectual and artistic achievements.

We may spend as much as we like putting Canadian authors, Canadian actors, Canadian musicians on to the air and the TV screens, but the general quality of the performances will be low, if interested audience will be small and if important, unless both are firmly rooted in an adequate educational system.

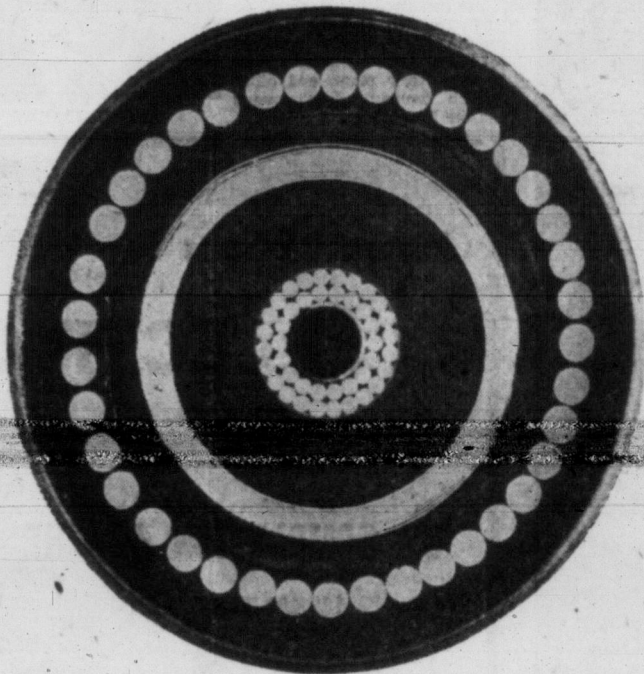

It is no use trying to force the growth of fine flowers, by artificial heat and light, if you do not start with a rich soil. But that is precisely what a lot of our cultural nationalists are up to. The motives are excellent, but good intention are not enough. The high-brows, of a people, should be able to do some proper thinking about the best ways to the objective.

The development of a true, fair Canadian culture will be rooted in the improvement of our education and especially of our own universities, which can use to advantage twice their present millions. Could the CBC use most of with a fraction so much benefit? So of our culture advocates would be well occupied in giving an honest answer that question. Or are they too dominated by their own interest in the CF as an employer of existing high-brow talent, ranging in quality from good less than indifferent?

A NEW FRONTIER IN SUBMARINE CABLE ENGINEERING HAS BEEN CROSSED

VANCOUVER ISLAND IS NOW LINKED TO THE MAINLAND POWER SUPPLY

SHOWN HERE is an approximately actual size cross-section of the new submarine cable, which measures 4½ inches in diameter and weighs 17 pounds per foot. Several thicknesses of impregnated paper surround the hollow copper core and are covered with a lead jacket. Inside this portion of the cable, nitrogen gas under pressure of 350 pounds to the square inch acts as an insulation and water seal. Three layers of tinned bronze, a rubber covering and an armour coating of stranded galvanized steel complete the cable, which has an outside covering of waterproofed jute.

THE TOTAL UNDERWATER and overhead circuit is 46 miles in length, of which 19½ are under the sea. Power is supplied from the Mainland network at newly-built Arnett Substation, is delivered overhead to Tsawwassen Beach, then 16½ miles underwater by unspliced cable to Galiano Island, across Galiano and Parker Islands by land line, then under Tricome Channel to Salt Spring Island, and finally overhead to the new Stratford receiving substation, from where it is delivered to Goward Substation in Victoria for distribution.

Although only three cables are required for a circuit, five have been laid as a safeguard to ensure dependable service.

If the population and industry of southern Vancouver Island were to double in size tomorrow, all their electric needs could be supplied by the cable you see reproduced in actual size on this page. For the one-inch hollow core of this cable conducts 120,000 kilowatts of electricity at 132,000 volts. No submarine cable of such high capacity, operating voltage and unspliced length was ever built before. B. C. Electric customers on Vancouver Island no longer need be faced with a shortage of power or more expensive methods of producing it; they can now draw on the Mainland hydro resources of the Company, which in the past nine years have been tripled, and which, by 1960, will have six times the capacity of 1948. The success of this bold innovation in the transmission of power assures a constant dependable supply of low cost energy to spur the economic progress of Vancouver Island.

Industry Needs To Be Filled

In one bold stroke of engineering, the B.C. Electric submarine cable adjoining the mainland of B.C. and Vancouver Island provides carrying capacity for double the amount of electricity presently used by the company's customers on Vancouver Island.

Offering highly practical insurance for industry and homes alike, the 132,000-volt underwater link will provide the tie-in between the generating facilities of the lower mainland and the company's distribution facilities on Vancouver Island.

HISTORY MADE

The four-inch undersea cable, which was laid in depths of as much as 600 feet, makes engineering history in being the longest unsplined cable of its kind to carry such high voltage.

The manufacture and laying of the cable is only part of the major story, as other new facilities have been added to make the project complete. This has involved the building near Maple Bay on Vancouver Island of Stratford switching station, a remote control station which receives power from the cable at 132,000 volts and carries it down-island to Greater Victoria.

Part of the program also includes the building (now under way) of a new substation in Saanich to be integrated into the distributing system. The station, to be named George Tripp, after an Island executive of the company, is scheduled for completion in late fall, in time for the winter peaks of electrical demand.

The completion of the cable project, and associated delivery and receiving stations, at an approximate cost of $8,000,000, adds a new source of supply to the company on Vancouver Island. For a great number of years the veteran Jordan River hydro plant, 40 miles northwest of Victoria, served the complete needs of the area. Later a steam plant was built at Brentwood Bay to assist in peaking purposes, and in the phenomenal load growth following the war the company entered into a contract to participate in surplus power from the John Hart hydro development at Campbell River.

Bridge River Work Costing $43,000,000

Completion of a $43,000,000 addition at the Bridge River plant of the B.C. Electric, and a satellite station at nearby Seton Creek, will boost output to 680,000 horsepower.

Just as important as the power itself is the new transmission line which will carry the power to the areas where it is needed. Soon electrical energy at super-high pressure will be surging southward to Rosedale in the Fraser Valley, and a new $14,000,000 transmission line will provide Lower Mainland residents and industry with a second link to the Bridge River generating station.

Construction crews erecting steel towers along the route from Rosedale north to Creekside on the Pacific Great Eastern Railway are followed by linemen. The 104-mile span will be energized this year at 240,000 volts.

BCE Engineer Responsible For Project

Tom Ingledow, vice-president and executive engineer of the B.C. Electric, is the man considered most responsible for the huge project.

He conceived the idea, and directed design and actual work on the project. He was in charge of building the company's giant Bridge River plant, and other major company developments on the Mainland.

BCE's Cable World Record

The world's highest-capacity, serve as phase conductors of and longest unspliced submarine cable will deliver power to Vancouver Island from the lower British Columbia mainland.

This 138,000 volt gas-pressure cable, consisting of five 4½-in. single-conductor cables, was installed in unspliced lengths of about 16½ and four miles. It constitutes a $5,000,000 portion of British Columbia Electric Co.'s new $8,000,000, 46-mile transmission system for feeding 120,000 kva across the Strait of Georgia to Great Victoria and Vancouver Island south.

UNMATCHED ANYWHERE

"This area now has a submarine power supply unmatched anywhere in the world. I know of nothing else, planned or built, to come close to its capacity," said Tom Ingledew, B.C. Electric vice-president and executive engineer, who conceived and developed the plan. The undersea link, acclaimed as "one of the most significant electrical developments in British Columbia," is B.C. Electric's response to load growth accompanying increasing population and industrial expansion on the Island. In view of the Mainland's undeveloped hydroelectric reserves, steam-electric or nuclear-electric plants would not have been economical.

3-PHASE CONDUCTORS

When it appeared that load would exceed the Island's hydro power resources, B.C. Electric engineers began studying submarine power cable designs. After two years of such research, along with surveys of the bottom of the Georgia Strait, the project was scheduled. British Insulated Callender's Cables Ltd., accepted the job of designing, building, delivering, and laying the cable.

The Ocean Layer, second largest and best equipped cable-laying ship in the world, was chartered from Submarine Cables Ltd. From the start, the month-long job of laying the cable was delicate and exacting. Extensive use was made of an electronic navigation system for guiding the ship as it placed five cables along the ocean floor within a 1¼-mile easement at depths of 200 fathoms, or 1,200 ft.

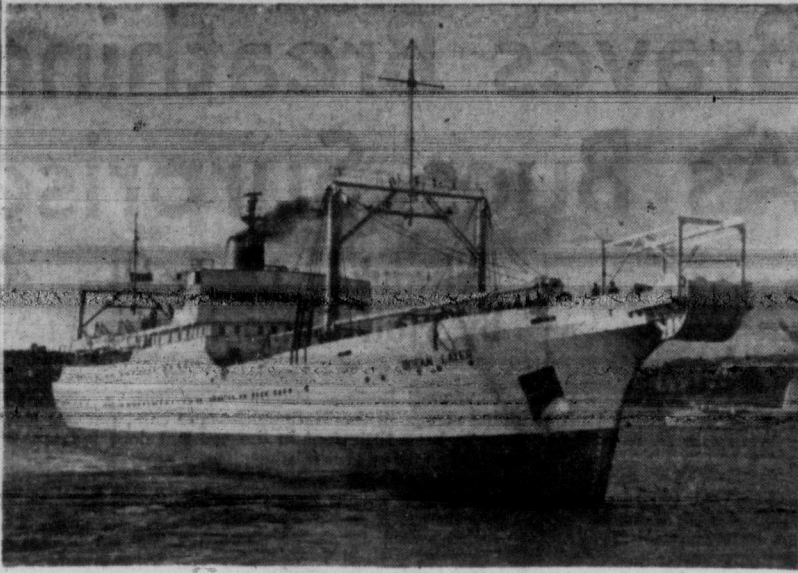

Of these cables, three will

WATER DEPTH VARIES

Route of the cable was determined in late 1954 through hydrographic surveys of the floor of the two main waterways to be crossed, the Strait of Georgia and Tricomali Channel. In the strait, most of the route lies below the 100-fathom line, the deepest point at 200 fathoms. In the channel, average depth is about 73 fathoms, the deepest point 105 fathoms. In charting the 3½-mile channel, the survey ship covered 520 miles, recording depth variations at 100-yard intervals.

The cables have their main-land jump-off point at Tsawwassen Beach, near Point Roberts. The tidal flats there were treacherous for ¼ mile, and the cable was laid in cast iron pipe to protect it against tidal action. From the beach the cables plunge west under the strait for 16½ miles to Taylor Bay on Galiano Island. The line then crosses the island with ACSF aerial conductor which spans to nearby Parker Island. From there the four-mile cable lengths carry the line under Tricomali Channel to Salt Spring Island. At these island landings the cable is laid in concrete chases to below low-water level. Transmission is overhead from Salt Spring Island to Vancouver Island near Duncan, where interconnection is made to the Victoria-Nanaimo network.

The 4,600-ton Ocean Layer arrived at Vancouver in July after a 40-day trip from England with more than 100 miles of cable coiled in her four cable tanks. Ten sections of cable included five 17-mile lengths and five 4-mile lengths. The vessel has a manoeuvrability on water comparable with that of a helicopter in air. She can move forward, backward, sideways, or maintain a fixed position despite wind or current. Navigational aids on ship-board included Decca and Loran systems for accurate position fixing and search radar for local navigation. The Decca electronic system kept the ship within feet of the projected course in spite of currents and winds in the Strait of Georgia.

SS. OCEAN LAYER, world's second largest cable ship, started work July 18 and was finished five weeks later. Cables were laid one at a time, and were paid out over bow as ship went stern first along rigidly prescribed course. Speed was maintained at 3½ knots during actual operation.

Teamwork by 34 Firms Vital Factor in Big Cable Job

Teamwork was a vital factor in the building of the 132,000-volt submarine cable linking southern Vancouver Island to the power supply of the Lower Mainland.

Thirty-four contractors participated in the job. Primary role was undertaken by British Insulated Callender's Cables Limited who had a $4,000,000 contract to supply and install the submarine cable.

Six other firms had contracts exceeding $100,000.

Largest of these contracts, totaling $339,150, went to the Vancouver firm, Hume and Rumble Ltd., for the construction of towers and overhead powerlines which form a vital part of the transmission line.

Tidewater Construction Co. Ltd., of Nanaimo, constructed roads and tower footings totalling $225,000. A $150,000 contract went to the Vancouver branch, Canadian General Electric Co., for supply of electrical materials and equipment.

Two firms had $125,000 contracts: Vancouver branch of Canadian Westinghouse Co. Ltd., for supply of supervisory control equipment, and J. S. Johnson Ltd., of Vancouver, for the construction of Arnott Substation.

Canada Wire & Cable Co. Ltd., Vancouver branch, supplied $122,600 worth of cable.

Other contracts exceeding $20,

000 went to: Eastern Power Devices Ltd., Vancouver, $97,200 for disconnect switches; Societa Anonima Elettificazione, of Italy, $84,800, to supply steel towers; Western Bridge & Steel Fabricators, Vancouver, $66,975, for steel structures and supports;

Peterson Electrical Construction Co. Ltd., Vancouver, $44,101 for construction of wood pole lines; Underhill & Underhill, Vancouver, $65,000 for surveys; Aluminum Co. of Canada Ltd., Vancouver, $25,764 for conductor and dampers;

T. F. Ayers Ltd., of Salt Spring Island, $25,000 for road construction; Dominion Construction Co. Ltd., Vancouver, $29,255 for general construction; Farmer Construction Co. Ltd., Victoria, $50,000 for construction of Stratford Substation; Dominion Bridge Co. Ltd., Vancouver, $23,877, for foundations on Parker and Salt Spring Islands; Straits Towing Co. Ltd., Vancouver, $31,000 for supply scow. Fifteen additional Vancouver firms received contracts under $20,000 which totalled $109,047.

Great New Substation

Giant Ingledew Substation, soon to be erected in Surrey, near New Westminster, is a vital part of a B.C. Electric plan to provide additional power on southern Vancouver Island.

The substation, to be constructed at an initial cost of $3,000,000, will be named after the company's vice-president and executive engineer, Tom Ingledew.

This installation will receive power from the Bridge River generating station at a pressure of 345,000 volts, one of the highest transmission voltages on the North American continent.

The pressure will be reduced to 230,000 volts by the substation's huge transformers and the current will be passed on as this lower pressure to another large substation now being built in Delta.

From there the electrical continue overhead to Tsawwassen Beach where it will plunge under the Gulf of Georgia via submarine cables.

Through these cables will flash energy at 138,000 volts, highest voltage yet designed in an underwater circuit. The cable has been fabricated in England by British Insulated Callender's Cables Ltd. under a contract that called for delivery by ship installation and finally, testing of underwater circuit.

We are proud of the part we have played in this outstanding achievement. As sub-contractors, we were able to work on this largest job of its kind due to our wide range of available services.

In this historic cable laying job we used our barges, tug boats, derricks, launches, anchors, frogmen, divers and other diversified facilities. We would like to extend our heartiest congratulations to the B.C. Electric Company Limited and the British Insulated Callender's Cables Limited upon a job well done.

MADE BY BICC

The contract required some 91 miles of 138,000-volt, gas-filled cable—including five continuous lengths of over 15 miles. A special single-core gas-filled cable was designed with a hollow dielectric for operation at a pressure of 345,000 lbs. per square inch. This was necessary in order that the cable's gas pressure should always exceed the water pressure at the bottom of the Georgia Strait, some 600 feet deep in places.

The cable was sheathed in lead alloy and reinforced against internal gas pressure by bronze tapes. A layer of vulcanized rubber protected the tapes against corrosion. Finally, the cable was encased in a galvanized steel wire for mechanical protection and to take the strain during coiling and laying operations. With the design settled, special plant was installed at a BICC Group factory in Manchester close to the docks, and production commenced.

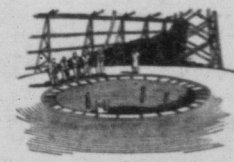

15 mile CONTINUOUS LENGTHS of SUBMARINE POWER CABLES

MADE & LAID by BICC

LAID BY BICC

From Manchester to Vancouver (via Panama) it is some 8,700 miles. But the first few hundred yards of this journey presented one of the greatest problems... namely, moving the very long and heavy lengths of cable (some weighing 800 tons) from the factory to the ship.

A 45 feet high gantry with power winches was built to carry the cables, first to the coiling down shed for testing and storage, and later, when all the cables had been made, over the docks area to be loaded aboard the "Ocean Layer." This up-to-date, 4,600 ton vessel is the second largest cable-lay in the world. Equipped with a Pleguer active rudder, housing an auxiliary propeller, she has the extreme manoeuvrability essential for cable laying. The long journey to Vancouver was uneventful. Laying operations were successfully carried out under the control of BICC engineers, who also terminated and tested the installation. Thus, from start to finish, design, development, manufacture, transportation, and installation were undertaken or controlled by BICC—the only organization with the facilities to manufacture long, continuous lengths of power cable and to install them anywhere in the world!

Now, after only two and a half years, this joint Anglo-Canadian venture has been completed, on schedule. Thanks to the courage and enterprise of the British Columbia Electric Company and the engineering skill of the BICC Group, the swiftly growing and highly important timber, pulp and paper industries of Vancouver Island can now obtain adequate power from the hydro-electric generating stations on the mainland.

OPERATION BIG EAR

Braves' Fans Sweat It Out

MILWAUKEE (NEA)—After his disastrous experience in Boston, owner Louis R. Perini of the Braves won't even permit the peanut butchers at County Stadium to be televised.

So, the good people of Milwaukee and the dairy country of Wisconsin and upper Michigan sweat it out at the radio as the Braves make their final bid for the National League pennant on the road. Sudsville and the butter and cheese land have been transformed into one tremendous listening post. It's Operation Big Ear. Never was there such an audience rating in one territory.

Theaters in Milwaukee and environs are empty when the Braves deploy on foreign battlefields, and save for three remaining home games, that's where they'll be until the last shot is fired.

Loudspeakers blare on each floor of Milwaukee department stores. Before they were installed, customers sat outside in automobiles listening to the game. Those who did come in were not waiting on by clerks listening to radios they had stashed away.

It's next to impossible to obtain an appointment or get any business done while a ball game is in progress. That's why the major companies already have announced that they will close at noon should the World Series open here.

Everybody scurrying down Wisconsin Avenue knows precisely what's going on in Cincinnati, St. Louis or wherever. Those not glued to a radio set carry their own. There has been a bumper sale of small transistor radios.

You follow the Braves in the lobbies of the better hotels—the Schroeder, Pfister, Wisconsin and Plankinton. People dine at the superior restaurants—Maders, Eugene's and Ratzche's—with one ear on the fortunes of Henry Aaron, Eddie Mathews, Joe Adcock, Bobby Thomson and whoever happens to be pitching for their side.

Only the voices of the announcers from the scene of action, Earl Gillespie and Blaine Walsh, are raised in 4,000 packed Milwaukee taverns.

Non-Listener Branded Traitor

A man in a car, waiting for a traffic light yelled to one walking along the street, "Why aren't you listening to the game, you traitor?"

A patient prepared for a major operation in a hospital would not let the surgeon apply the anesthetic until the Braves had batted in the ninth.

A mother took her youngster to the dentist. After 15 minutes or so, the little boy and the dentist came out smiling.

"I filled three teeth," reported the dentist.

"What a miracle," replied the mother.

"It's easy now, you see," winked the dentist. "I use Eddie Mathews fillings."

Hal Goodnough, in charge of the Braves' sales promotion, went fishing on the Menominee Indian Reservation, 200 miles north of Milwaukee. Goodnough walked five miles to a cabin, where a guide greeted him.

"My radio has been on the blink for a week, and I don't know how the Braves came out," said the guide.

Goodnough was driving along a state road when he came to a stretch being repaired and calling for one-way traffic. A man repairing the wire on a pole saw the Indian head and "Thanks Wisconsin" painted on the car.

"What's the score?" he shouted.

"We're ahead, 4-to-1," replied Goodnough.

Driving on for 15 miles, Goodnough came to another man on a pole.

"We're still ahead," yelled the repair man. The word had been passed along.

There are similar stories from Madison, Beloit, Racine, La Crosse, Portage, Appleton, Princeton, Janesville and Houghton, Wis., and Marquette, Ishpeming, Escanaba, Iron Mountain and Hancock, Mich.

Major Item at Bottom of Shaft

An engineer took a Milwaukee business man 300 feet down into a copper mine near Houghton, 425 miles from Sudsville.

"I'll have to give the men the score," said the engineer. "They pass it through the shafts."

These stories are piled upon the many that cropped up while the Braves were playing in their own backyard.

There was the woman looking out her window and saying to the game, "I don't care so much about my husband," she explained, "but he has tickets for tomorrow night's game in his pocket."

A woman was divorced on three grounds — her husband's profanity, excessive alcoholism and refusal to buy her a season ticket to the Braves' games.

A large manufacturing concern in Beloit, 70 miles from Milwaukee, advertising for help in the office said it was only 90 minutes from County Stadium.

A sign at Princeton reads, "Milwaukee County Stadium Straight Ahead 150 Miles."

A barber at Portage, 100 miles from Milwaukee, hung out a sign, "Closed Three Days — I Can't Stand It Any Longer."

Little wonder that nine special mail boxes had to be placed around Milwaukee's Federal Building to handle World Series ticket requests.

Doc Wendler Nurses Bums' Creaks, Bumps

NEW YORK (NEA)—Stand beside Harold Wendler in the Brooklyn dressing room and you get a fine idea to the risks run by an old club in the thick of a pennant race.

Venerable, combative, head, biceps, torso, and creak, so Trainer Wendler is the busiest man in Flatbush keeping the Dodgers on the field.

Sal Maglie, whose aching back chased him to the American League for a spell, is a positive wonder at 39. Jackie Robinson and Pee Wee Reese, who are 37, amaze even an old pro like Doc Wendler. Roy Campanella admits to 34, which is the age of Carl Furillo. Gil Hodges is 32.

"Because of his age, determination, speed and hustle, I venture to say that Robinson has played under more handicaps than any other player," says Wendler, a greying, soft-spoken little man. "Robby has had a dozen different things wrong with him. He wears guards on his left knee and both ankles. He has had trouble with both knees, his back, almost every joint. There is no swelling in his knees, but they hurt. Last year he complained about pain running through his hip."

Through the years, Reese has been hampered by pulled hamstring muscles in the back of the thighs, more recently in the left leg, but he still gets out into left field to catch a fly ball or back of second base to start a double play as good or better than any other shortstop.

Next to Robinson, Campanella is Wendler's Exhibit A. "Foul tips hit Roy on the fingers, arms, shoulders and legs, which are black and blue half the time," points out the man who keeps the burly catcher in the game. "The last time Roy had to take time out he was hit on the knuckle of the index finger of his throwing hand. It swelled and was sore. Gripping the bat aggravated the knuckle with the result that there was pain in the palm of the hand. The operation for a bone chip a couple of years ago left partial paralysis between the index finger and thumb."

Ballplayers do not call the catcher's equipment the tools of ignorance for nothing. They are worn only by brave and hardy men.

Wendler was bandaging Duke Snider's throwing elbow and left knee when the reporter poked his head through the door of his cubbyhole.

"I do this with a new gauze bandage. Killing, which permits freedom of movement," he explains.

Snider is having what for a percentage of his team, a painful but not a big deal, and Wendler knows the time gives you the principal reason.

"Duke has a chronic sore left knee," he reveals. "Lately, a pulled muscle in the groin area of his right leg has given him even more trouble. The best thing for Duke is a day's rest. Anatomically, the knee is perfectly sound. It's muscular difficulty in the area of the knee that hurts. Duke aggravates the knee pivoting on it at bat, sliding or starting suddenly in the field."

Present day trainers make as much use as they can of all sorts of electro manipulators and deep heat gadgets. "But you still have to bear down, reach in and get at those muscles," concludes Harold Wendler.

"Training a ball club still calls for a lot of elbow grease."

Just Another Race To Blase Brooklyn

BROOKLYN, N.Y. (NEA)—Brooklyn is grim. Brooklyn is quiet. Brooklyn is peaceful. One day in Brooklyn is like another, even though their well-beloved Dodgers are fighting for their lives in the pennant race.

There are no celebrants dancing in the tree-lined streets; there are no orgies of cheering; there is no burning of Bob Buhl in effigy; there is not much of anything.

People smile a bit more than normal, perhaps. The sun seems to be shining a shade brighter. Maybe the birds are singing with just a little more melody.

But Brooklyn takes each day in stride.

And Brooklyn has been taking the whole hot pennant race in stride. The reaction is unusual, because Brooklyn has been the scene of more mass jubilation and more mass sorrow (most often the latter) than anywhere. But not in the autumn of '56.

YANK COMPLEX

"Brooklyn has a junior Yankee complex," says one man who knows the borough well. "They expect to win. They are supremely confident and with confidence comes a sort of conservative enthusiasm."

This conservative enthusiasm is in no way a lack of interest. The Dodgers' fans still listen to each game, play-by-play. They read every scrap of news about their heroes and the bad guys. They chat about the condition of Snider's knee and Robinson's knee and Labine's wrist.

But there is no hysteria. They listen calmly, read quietly, chat softly. They are intense fans, but they aren't hungry fans. They have supper at the table of a World's Championship and quaffed deeply from the cup of success. And with such meat and drink to succor them, they no longer feel the urge to plead and beg and implore and shout and cheer and dance.

And Brooklyn no longer has its own daily newspaper. The Brooklyn Eagle used to run front-page headlines — "the magic number is only three" — which kept things at an exciting pitch.

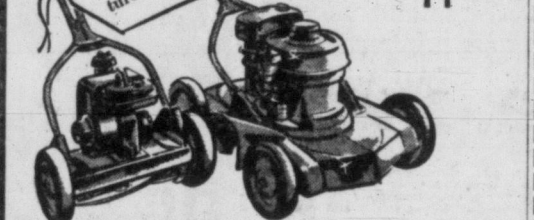

GROWN UP

"Brooklyn is grown up," says another Brooklynite. "We're out of the short-pants stage. We're champions of the world and we're behaving like champions of the world. We're behaving like, if you'll pardon the expression, Yankee fans."

15 Days Left For Vets to Buy Lansdowne Lots

Veterans have 15 more days to file applications to purchase property on the Lansdowne field—Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation subdivided before the lots are offered for sale to the general public.

Sale of the 132 building lots—all free of local improvement taxes—are restricted to veterans for only one month. The lots, priced at $1,500 each, were put up for sale Sept. 10.

Nine veterans have purchased lots on the Saanich subdivision, situated between Richmond and Shelbourne, site of an earlier-day airfield, officials said. Six other applications are under consideration.

Officials said they expect the lots to go quickly once the property is offered for sale to the general public in view of the exemption of local improvement taxes on the land.

Once construction begins on the subdivision, officials said.

Salk Vaccine Arrives Here

First shipment of Salk anti-polio vaccine to arrive in the city since last spring has been received at Victoria-Esquamalt Health Centre.

Dr. Elizabeth Mahaffy, medical health officer, said the first allotment contained about 900 doses.

She announced plans for first injections of the fall term to begin in early October. All pupils now in grade two, who received first injections last spring in grade one, as well as about 30 youngsters who were absent from classes when the first shots were given, will get injections.

Work will begin for the establishment of a shopping centre adjoining the subdivision. Simpson-Sears, owner of a block of land, plans to erect a $1,000,000 department store in the area.

KELOWNA MAN NEW PLANNER FOR SAANICH

Saanich council Monday appointed R. G. Rhodes, 42, who has worked in the Kelowna city engineering office for 11 years, as assistant planning administrator for the municipality.

He will take over the office next month.

Mr. Rhodes will act as liaison between Saanich engineering department and the town planning commission.

The appointment was made after municipal engineer H. D. Dawson said Saanich needed a planning administrator to assist in the planning of subdivisions and roads.

'God Loves a Sinner, But Hates His Sinful Rebellious Ways'

By DINAH KERR, Times Church

First layman ever to occupy the pulpit of Christ Church Cathedral, evangelist Tom Rees told a congregation of 1,300 Monday night, "God loves the sinner but hates his sinful, rebellious ways."

The public meeting was the third of 17 planned for the Inter-Church Evangelistic Mission with the world-renowned Rees. Majority of the congregation was Anglican with United Church members second, Baptists third, and a scattering of other denominations.

Evangelist Rees termed the church's opening prayers and hymns "very inspiring, but rather difficult."

"But we've got through the difficult part," he said. "Now we can get down to business."

He asked all Victorians to pray daily for the mission, themselves and the ministers.

"I honestly believe if many in our congregation spent the same amount of time on their knees as they do in talking about their ministers behind their backs, the world would be much easier," he said.

Finally, he asked, "Please pray for me."

"Gladly," called a man in the back pews.

"Thank you," said Rees.

Then he began his address on the theme, "God Is Love."

"There are a lot of things in the world today that we refer to as love, but it is not really love at all," he said.

"We speak very glibly of the love of a man for a woman, but it is often nothing but base lust, selfishness and greed. Real love is a consuming desire for and delight in someone's highest good."

"The only people we really want to love are those whom we ourselves love."

"So often we measure the love of God by our love of others," he cried. "But if they should turn against us, our love will shrivel up."

He said that God loves man in spite of his sins. "He loves the sinner but at the same time, God hates our sinful, rebellious ways."

"Where there is real love, there must be real hatred. Why is God so terribly down on sin? Because our sin and rebellion is the foot of all poverty, fear, suffering, war, inequality and cause of death."

"One of the biggest problems of eternity... are you following closely? ... pray God you are... is will God let us into Heaven in spite of our sins?" He paused. "Impossible. Or will he condemn us and let love and mercy go to the winds?"

"No, my friends," he said. "He has devised a means for our salvation. He sent Jesus Christ to bear our sins that we might remain in righteousness. The Cross above everything else, brings the assurance to all of us of the love of God."

He asked for complete silence as the congregation left the church—"Because if God's been speaking it's awfully hard isn't it, if His voice is drowned out by conversation about the speaker or the singing."

Rees was introduced by Archbishop Harold E. Sexton who said he was "honored" that the first layman to occupy the pulpit was a man of such magnitude.

Prayers were conducted by Rev. G. R. Easter, First Baptist Church.

Another meeting will be held at Christ Church Cathedral tonight at 8. Rees will conduct lunch-hour meetings at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church daily to next Friday, from 12:30 to 12:40 p.m.

BETWEEN TIMES By MONTE ROBERTS

I have been asked to tell all I know about Sea Cadets. The reason is, you may be meeting a Sea Cadet face to face any minute now, and you should know how to treat him, such as saying "Ahoy," or "Scupper my bilges," or "square that rig, mate," or even "dig that mate, square."

(As you can see, fortunately I do not know very much about Sea Cadets. However.)

Sea Cadets do not necessarily go to sea, or at least not very much, until they are too old to be Sea Cadets, which is eventually, when a great many of them do.

Before they are too old to be Sea Cadets, Sea Cadets learn a great many useful things, such as all about half hitches. When they are too old to be Sea Cadets, they learn about whole hitches, especially if there happens to be a war going on at the time.

Sea Cadets have nothing to do with the Navy, as such, but the Navy is glad to have them around, which is why the Navy League (which also has nothing to do with the Navy, being all civilians) supports the Sea Cadets, thus making everything very confusing but I am sure it will come out all right in the end.

Sea Cadets rarely, if ever, wind up in juvenile court or any other court, which is probably due to something lacking in their training.

Sea Cadets are not a drain on the expenditures of the Department of National Defence, not that they wouldn't like to be, but because the Dept. of Nat. Def. has other drains to drain its expenditures down.

Sea Cadets have an establishment in Victoria on which the Navy League pays taxes, just as gladly, cheerfully, and joyfully as any other taxpayer.

Sea Cadets spend most of their time learning about "hup," and "ho," and "harch," and "tennn-SHUN."

But once in a long time Sea Cadets go around selling, of all things, oranges.

I presume Sea Cadets do this because oranges are good for you, and the small profit Sea Cadets make is good for Sea Cadets.

This brings us back to the point pointed out above—namely, you may be meeting a Sea Cadet face to face any minute now.

When you do, remember naval parlance and purchase: "Oranges, lots, Sea Cadets, for the assistance of."

'MUMS FOR VIEW NOT BREW

The gift will be a memento of his swim from Victoria to Port Angeles last month. He is the only swimmer ever to have completed a north-south crossing of the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

Chairman of council entertainment and reception committee, Ald. Austin Curtis, recommended the gift because he understood the swimmer has "a closet full of trophies, and with his wife, is moving into his first home."

Herbert Clague has completed final Dominion Board examination given under the GAA and will receive his Certified General Accountants' Certificate at the provincial convention, to be held in Vancouver, Oct. 26-27.

Strong protest against the swastika on his back, in Memorial Arena have been sent to city arena commission.

The arena was dedicated as a memorial to the men who died in the first and second world wars. A letter to city council from Branch 7, Canadian Legion, described the event as "... an insult to the memory of these men."

The wrestler who first appeared in the arena Sept. 14, was billed last Thursday, this time as the "German Stormtrooper."

Mary G. Curling, 2852 Inez, was fined $15 in city court for failing to stop for an occupied cross-walk at Topaz and Douglas.

Three witnesses testified in Supreme Court today that Robin James Dunsmuir of Victoria attempted to suppress the sale of the book "From Coal Mine to Castle" in city book stores.

The witnesses were testifying in the civil suit of James Audain, author of the book, who claims unstated damages from Mr. Dunsmuir for slander to himself and his book.

Published in June, 1953, the book is a historical biography of the Dunsmuir family who played an important part in the history of the province, largely through developing B.C.'s coal mining industry.

DEFENDENT'S COUSIN

Mr. Audain is a great-grandson of Robert Dunsmuir, founder of the family on Vancouver Island who built a great industrial empire in the late 19th century. He is a cousin of the defendant.

Trial opened before Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane and George Gregory, is counsel for Mr. Audain. A. deB. McPhillips is representing Mr. Dunsmuir.

Mr. Dunsmuir at the same time has a counter-claim for $10,000 damages against his cousin. He alleges the book contains certain libelous statements which have injured his reputation.

Mr. Dunsmuir at the same time has a counter-claim for $10,000 damages against his cousin. He alleges the book contains certain libelous statements which have injured his reputation.

George Albert Hebdon, senior partner in the Hebdon-Quance book store, said Mr. Dunsmuir warned him in July the store was open to a libel action if it sold the book. He said Mr. Dunsmuir told him he considered the book to be untrue in many respects as well as containing material which was libelous.

Andrew Wright, book department manager of T. Eaton Co. store here, said he also was warned by the defendant the book contained certain libelous statements.

Earlier, Mr. Gregory in his address to the jury said he would attempt to prove Mr. Dunsmuir called his client a liar.

Referring to Mr. Dunsmuir's counter-claim, Mr. Gregory said Mr. Audain wrote only what was true and factual. He pointed out Mr. Dunsmuir took offense to certain statements which he believed meant that he (Mr. Dunsmuir) was of illegitimate birth.

"The statements have no such meaning," said Mr. Gregory. "They were written without malice."

RCMP Pressing Search for Cayuga Money

Sailor Jailed
For 18 Months

RCMP search for the missing money in the "Cayuga case" moved into high gear today, following sentence of 18 months in Esquimalt court Monday for AB Francis J. Cassidy, who confessed taking $14,522 from the ship's safe April 28, 1955.

He has accounted for about $2,900 of the money.

RCMP are also investigating possibility of an accomplice, although Cassidy's confession stated he was on his own in the theft.

Constable Douglas Rogers of "E" Detachment, Victoria, is in Ontario back-tracking the trail of Cassidy during the period he was in the east.

DISAPPEARED

He stated a large portion of the money was "cached" in Ontario, and when he returned to the cache he found it gone.

RCMP objective is to find who removed the money from the cache, and to check specifically on all aspects of Cassidy's story.

A general court order of restitution for the full amount of the money was issued Monday.

SHOPPING GUIDE

A Sale's a Perfect Time To Pick Up Extra Gifts

By PENNY SAVER

SALE! There's a sign that will lure me every time. If there are a few pennies to be saved, there I'll be. It's more than a few pennies, though, on the wonderful bargains I noted. The wise woman will stock up on shower, Christmas and birthday gifts, so that there's no mad rush to do last-minute shopping. Here's a perfect opportunity to buy some gift or household items at a greatly reduced price. Black panthers in any one of four sizes are at a popular price. A large one is $1, and a set of three smaller ones in varying sizes costs 79 cents.

A sandwich set comprised of a long serving plate and six matched side plates was $3, and has been put down to $1.98. Cups and saucers in a host of patterns were priced at $2.95 and are now $1.29 each. Six tinted tumblers with a cutwork spray pattern are yours for just $1. In another store I found eight tinted brandy glasses packed neatly for gift-giving. These are $1.50 for the set, and with the tumblers, would make a lovely gift, and all for less than $3.

Contour combs to keep your tresses where you want them are a boon to those with long hair. These combs, which I've already told you about, bend to fit your hair styling. Formerly available only in natural hair colors, brown, black, auburn and grey, now you can buy them in silver and gold. They're 39 cents a card, which holds either one large comb or two small ones.

You girls with glasses have probably looked at the "spec grippers" that keep glasses from falling while you work, but you've usually decided that they were too old-fashioned for you—the modern miss. Well, change your tune, 'cause now you can buy these handy grippers in five chain styles and in seven different colors. Clip the chain onto your glasses, hang the lightweight chain around

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Here's What the Teenager Needs in the Way of Diet

Yesterday I wrote about the fatigue which often accompanies teen age. If this persists after you have taken advantage of the suggestions I am giving you, then you teenagers should have a physical checkup. Actually, young folks of this age group should have these regularly. It is particularly important during this period of rapid growth.

For instance, anemia can cause lacklustre and many adolescents are anemic because they eat incorrectly. In fact this is one of the poorest nourished of all age groups. This is a serious problem and it is sad that teenagers do not realize it.

Just when the food requirements are especially important to the swiftly growing young people they build trouble for themselves by eating incorrectly. We can easily see why this will happen unless the young person can be given an understanding of the vital needs of his body.

When young folks gather at parties and for-in between meals snacks they seldom have foods vital to health. They are more often of the devitalized classification. They provide calories and are not harmful except that they dull the appetite for the foods absolutely essential for good health and good looks.

Some of the diets and methods teen-age girls adopt in order to slim down to Movie-Queen proportions are unbelievable. Unfortunately, the crazier these are the more they seem to appeal to girls of this age.

Each day every teenager should have:

One quart of milk.

One egg.

Some whole grain, enriched cereal and bread.

Variety in fresh vegetables, especially the green and yellow ones.

Citrus fruit or fruit juice or both.

Meat or fish or fowl.

Some fat, as in butter.

Because of the rapid bone growth most physicians advise a vitamin capsule which contains vitamin D.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Popularity" which was written for teenagers, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 58. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

White bridal satin and tulle highlighted with white accents—sassy roses fashioned the waist-length wedding gown worn by Miss Sheila Laurel Fraser for her marriage to Orville Keith Phillips. The fitted bodice had a scalloped neckline and the skirt was caught up with roses in scallops with a burst of white tulle below the satin. The gown, which was designed and made by the bride, had a dainty tulle jacket with lily point sleeves. We Buy Food for Looks, Not Quality Mrs. Gummow Tells Consumers Modern housewives buy what ever looks best, regardless of price, Mrs. Stella Gummow, supervisor of Women's Institutes in British Columbia, speaking on "Producer and Consumer" to members of the Canadian Association of Consumers, Monday.

"Women do not regard a few cents' savings on various food products worthwhile. As long as they can have the same quality products, specially packaged, they'll willingly pay more."

JOAN CRAWFORD AND CLIFF ROBERTSON in a scene from their unusual movie, "Autumn Leaves," now at the Royal.

"AUTUMN LEAVES" (BB plus) (Royal) — Like most actresses, Joan Crawford has her ardent fans as well as those who wouldn't cross the street to see her if they were paid. Nonetheless, even the latter would hesitate to charge that Miss Crawford is incapable of a good performance.

The lady has been around for a good many years now. There are those who will remember her in such gay pieces as "Our Dancing Daughters" back in the late '20s. There are others who will cherish her memory in "Grand Hotel" and in the pulsating musical, "Dancing Lady," with Clark Gable, Fred Astaire, Nelson Eddy and Franchot Tone, about 1934. Her vogue continued through the balance of the 1930s and even through the war. There have been few finer performances in the postwar years than Miss Crawford's Academy Award-winning "Mildred Pierce."

BETWEEN THE HIGHLIGHTS, however, as there must be, there have been less creditable efforts. One such is Columbia's "Autumn Leaves." This is not due to poor acting on the part of Miss Crawford and the cast, but is a reflection on the story itself. Simply, "Autumn Leaves" is difficult to believe. Miss Crawford, an aging spinster, has given up promised loves because of duty and one thing or another. Then comes along Cliff Robertson, a man young enough to be her son, to woo her. Against her better judgment she finally marries him.

IT ISN'T LONG, however, before she discovers that her boy is, to put it mildly, a bit of a prevaricator. Worse, she learns that he has been married before, to Vera Miles. Then, one day after the guy has tried to bash her brains out with a typewriter, she wakes up to what the audience has suspected all along, he's crackers. After much misgivings and conferences with a psychiatrist, she decides to leave him. She is most forgiving. For she has uncovered a nasty little affair between his ex-wife Vera and her hubby's pappy, played by ex-CB's, Lorne Greene.

As word comes from the hospital that Robertson is recovering, Joan has found a new and frightening worry—will the boy who fled to her as a son flee to his mother when frightened, still love her? Or will he have been cured not only of his illness but of her also?

THE PICTURE has been done in black and white, usually signifying that the studio has Oscar aspirations. If so, Columbia is doomed to disappointment. However, for those who can be happy with less than perfection, "Autumn Leaves" should provide satisfactory entertainment.

This is truly a great picture and one which has excited every good word said for and about it. The superb acting of the two leads, British immigrant boys is beyond description and their intense longing for a dog which leads them to "adopt" a "baby" is played with a naturalness which has to be seen to be believed. There is romance, laughter and suspense which rounds out a film full of outstanding entertainment. It can be thoroughly enjoyed again and again. Highly recommended.

RACE FOR ATOMIC PLANES

Britain and the United States are in a hot race to build the first atom-powered airplane. And the first successful flight may not be far off, according to an article in this week's Star Weekly.

Atomic power is now turning electric generators in Britain. An atomic power unit would be a small, compact affair, but it would require a fifty-ton steel shield for protection from atomic reaction, which is just one of the engineering problems presented. It's coming and according to the Star Weekly writer, atom-powered planes may become the main transport of the world.

The Star Weekly keeps you informed about world affairs and people in the news; the field of entertainment and sports. It presents pictures and advance fashion news from world fashion centres; new recipes and menus for your table; things to make and things to do. Announce New Way To Shrink Painful Piles

Science Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain. Thousands have been relieved—without resort to surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Hero Claims Award Won Two Years Ago

VANCOUVER—Korbi Kosoloski, a Vancouver mill-right, Monday claimed a Royal Canadian Humane Society award he won two years ago for heroism.

He walked into the city hall unheralded and received the award from acting-mayor Earle Adams who cited Mr. Kosoloski for "bravery and presence of mind."

He performed the act of bravery on a rainy night in November, 1954.

He was a passenger in a car driven by Henry, Neufels of Chilliwack. Mr. Neufels, blinded by spray thrown up by a passing car, lost control and the car left the road, landing upside down in a water-filled ditch.

Mr. Kosoloski escaped by smashing through a window but dived back into the water to rescue the driver, who was pinned in the wrecked car.

He said he learned of the award last weekend when he returned to a friend's home here to pick up his rifle for a hunting trip.

NEW CHURCH PLANNED KAM LOOPS — Announcement was made Sunday by Hon. P. A. Gagliardi, pastor of Calvary Temple here and B.C.'s highway minister, that plans are being made for a new church building. The congregation of the church and the Sunday School membership have outgrown the present building.

GUNMAN CHARGED NELSON — A gunman who ran a Nelson hotel when the night clerk called police despite gunpoint threats levelled at him, is in custody of city police here.

Stanley Smith, 32, recently employed as a plumber at Crawford Bay on Kootenay Lake, pleaded guilty in city police court Monday to being in possession of an unregistered revolver and carrying an offensive weapon.

MOTORIST ON TRIAL PRINCE RUPERT — A Cloverdale man went on trial in Supreme Court here Monday charged with criminal negligence in the death of Donald Harvey Milne, 24, of Langley.

Appearing before Mr. Chief Justice John G. Ruttan was Kenneth George Kristoff, 28, whose car plunged off the highway 16 miles east of Smithers last May 27, killing Milne and injuring Kristoff and two other passengers.

$500 TRAFFIC FINE VANCOUVER — Ernest Bayer, 23, Steveston, B.C., service station worker convicted of criminal negligence arising from a traffic death, was fined $500 and his driver's licence was suspended for six months here Monday.

He was involved in a four-car collision here May 6.

Two Airmen Die in Crash Of RCAF Jet

ST. HUBERT, Que. (CP)—Two airmen were killed Monday night when an RCAF CF-100 jet fighter returning from a routine training flight undershot the landing field and crashed about a mile from this air defence command headquarters base on the outskirts of Montreal.

The RCAF said there was no explosion or fire when the plane crashed and it was some time before officials became aware of anything was wrong. Ground-search parties located the wreckage after an air search was undertaken when the plane failed to return on schedule.

The pilot was identified as Flt. Lt. S. K. Woolley, 33, of Montreal, an Air Defence Command staff officer whose family is resident on the base. The other victim was Flt. Lt. Edmond Keller, 31, of St. Catharines, Ont.

PROUD AS PEACOCK—Mrs. Finley E. Noah defied polio for motherhood. Completely paralyzed four years ago, she spent months in an iron lung. Still paralyzed, she gave birth to a five-pound 11-ounce son at Memphis, Tenn. "We're as proud as peacocks," she beamed. (NEA telephoto.)

Plane Rams Peak; 12 Crewmen Die BUENA VISTA, Colo. (AP)—All 12 persons aboard a United States Air Force C-47 were killed Monday when the twin-engine craft plunged into the sheer northwest edge of 14,172-foot Mount Yale.

The plane was attached to the Continental Air Force Defence Command at Colorado Springs, Colo. It was on a flight to Hamilton Air Force Base, near San Francisco.

Rescue Crews Tear Away Soil To Pull Tot From Well Casing

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP)—A three-year-old boy trapped nine used for irrigation, while playing feet underground in a 12-inch well in a vacant lot. Other children casing was saved Monday night saw him disappear and notified by thousands.

Darkness was falling as the rescuers were working in sweating relays, cue operation began, and the firemen and volunteers tore at the floodlights used to illuminate the sandy soil around the abandoned well. A cheer went up as the rescuers pulled the boy out of the well.

Tommy Hartnett whimpered and sobbed in his cramped and rusty ers succeeded in clearing away enough dirt to cut off a six-foot section of the pipe, and Fire Chief C. P. Linnell reached down and pulled the boy out.

A root growing through the casing had kept him from falling deeper into the pipe, which extended for 150 feet, rescuers said.

Tommy was unharmed. The rescue recalled the 1948 Kathy Fiscus tragedy, when that three-year-old girl fell into a similar abandoned pipe in the same California area.

Canada's Military Manpower Drops to Lowest in 2 Years

Army's Top Regiment 1,600 Short

BY DAVE MCINTOSH
OTTAWA (CP)—Strength of Canada's armed forces has fallen to its lowest figure in two years.

The downward trend in service manpower comes at a time when the RCAF is looking for more personnel for three new CF-100 jet fighter squadrons and the navy needs more sailors to man its new destroyer escorts.

A defence department spokesman said the strength of the forces at the end of July—latest figure available—was 115,952.

The breakdown: Navy, 18,824; army, 47,397; RCAF, 49,731.

Toward the close of 1954, service manpower stood at about 117,000. In March of the same year it was 112,500.

120,000 Ceiling

The manpower ceiling set for the armed forces is 120,000—20,000 for the navy, 49,000 for the army and 51,000 for the air force.

At the end of March last year, total strength stood at 118,077, the highest figure reached since the defence build-up started with outbreak of the Korean War in 1950.

The recent decline has been most evident in the navy and the air force. Since the start of the year, the navy has had a net loss of about 400 and the air force of about 600. The army has gained about 200.

An army official said the army is trying hard to recruit men, especially in the infantry, but is having trouble. He added that recruiting always appears to be slower in summer than in winter and particularly in prosperous times.

Everybody Used

The shortage of army manpower is shown in the strength of the Regiment of Canadian Guards. The regiment has four battalions which normally would have a strength of about 900 men each. But not one of the battalions has more than 500 men.

In a recent demonstration for the Toronto Board of Trade at Camp Petawawa, Ont., one of the guards battalions carried out a mock infantry attack in company strength. But instead of using only one company, it had to press the entire battalion into service because of the shortage of infantrymen.

The 1956-57 white paper on defence, issued by the government earlier this year, said: "Provision has been made for some increase in strength in the navy and air force."

Lt. Gen. Guy Simonds, former chief of the army general staff and since his retirement a year ago one of the sternest critics of Canadian defence policy, maintains that the army is being deliberately held down in strength at the expense of a bigger RCAF establishment.

WAITING FOR RETURN of young Mary Pennock are two-year-old brother, Jimmy, and surprise present

SHHH! DON'T TELL A SOLITARY SOUL

Three-Legged Surprise Awaits City Child After Leg Surgery

By MONTE ROBERTS

Shhh! Don't tell a soul, but there's a three-legged surprise waiting for four-year-old Mary Pennock when she returns to Victoria, two weeks from now, after an operation on her right leg at the Shrine Hospital, Portland.

The three-legged surprise is also four years old. His name is Skipper, and he's a springer spaniel, of great dignity and friendliness.

Mary—everybody calls her Button, because that's what she's as cute as—is bound to be pleased as well as surprised. Because Skipper used to live near her home, 330 Niagara, and Button used to wish Skipper were her very own dog.

Both Have Overcome Handicaps

Button has had trouble with her right leg ever since she was a tiny baby. And Skipper lost one of his legs in an accident.

Both Button and Skipper have overcome their handicaps, so perhaps that's why they're so fond of each other.

How Skipper has now become Button's very own dog is one of those things which make life brighter for the SPCA and this newspaper.

Skipper's owners, who moved away from James Bay two years ago, brought him to the SPCA for adoption. Regrettably, they could no longer keep him.

So on Saturday, this newspaper ran Skipper's picture. Mrs. James Pennock, Button's mother, saw the photo, recognized Button's old pal—and the reunion was arranged.

Times to Run 'SPCA Guest List'

But don't tell a soul. This is to be a surprise for Button.

And the happy home secured for Skipper through this newspaper has engendered an idea.

The SPCA and the Times will team up to run a daily feature called "SPCA Guest List."

The list will describe the dogs "in residence" at the small animal shelter, 111 Wilson street.

It will be divided into two sections: "New arrivals" for the benefit of those who may have lost a pet which has turned up at the SPCA; and "ready for adoption," listing those doggies who are anxious for a new home.

The new Times-SPCA feature will appear daily on the comic page commencing Wednesday.

Corpse Hauled By Heels

(Special to the Times)

ALBERNI — The RCMP here is conducting a round-the-clock search for ghoulish vandals who Sunday night or early Monday morning raided a cemetery, dragged a body from a grave and desecrated several graves.

Residents were angry and horrified as police revealed the culprits—apparently drunk—pulled the corpse from its grave by tying a chain to its ankle.

The body was in the pauper's section of the Greenwood Cemetery.

CROSSES TORN

The unearthed body was left lying on the ground beside the grave.

In the veterans' section, 18 crosses were torn from grave-heads and placed to form barriers on the pathways between graves.

Flowers from graves were torn to pieces and tossed around the cemetery.

President of the Somass branch, Canadian Legion, said today he was "horrified. No one could do a worse thing than desecrate a grave, and the worst thing of all must be desecration of a veterans' plot."

APPALLED

Legion padre here, Rev. Glen Stevenson said "how terrible. I buried most of those boys up there."

Citizens of the area are appalled.

POLICE HAVE LEADS

"It was done by somebody or persons who had been drinking," the RCMP here said today.

"Foul," said the constable in charge. "The mentality of anyone who would do such a thing is amazing."

RCMP have leads, and promised today to follow the matter through to its conclusion.

RCMP said tire marks indicated those responsible drove a car into the cemetery.

RCMP Talk to RCAF Civilian Clerk Involved In Red Spy Bid for Jet War Plane Secrets

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian civilian who tipped authorities to the espionage attempts of a Russian diplomat may have conveyed to the Reds the feeling he knew more military secrets than actually was the case.

James Stanley Staples, former Rockcliffe Air Station clerk, said the Russians didn't seem to be too sure of just how much he knew. And he said he "acted a bit" during his acquaintanceship with them which may have conveyed the feeling that he knew a lot about defence developments.

His information to security officials led to the expulsion of Gennadi F. Popov, Russian embassy second secretary. Staples, fired June 29 from his Rockcliffe job because he was considered a doubtful security risk, said Popov was the kingpin in Russian attempts to get information from him. He said he gave them nothing. Popov was ordered out of the country, and left Aug. 12.

Canadian officials said the expulsion was the first of its kind in Canada since those that developed out of the sensational 1945 spy disclosures of Igor Gouzenko.

The 30-year-old Mr. Staples talked with RCMP security officials Monday night.

They accused him of being the original source of newspaper stories on the affair to get his name in the papers.

Staples denied this. The espionage attempt was disclosed Saturday in the brief of the Pan-Canadian anti-Communist League which demanded the Canadian government exercise greater surveillance and control over Soviet embassy officials.

Staples said he did not know how the Pan-Canadian League got hold of the information. He had not been in touch with the league.

Jockey Set Down Six Months At Sandown; Used Wire Whip

One of the stiffest sentences in the recent history of horse racing in Victoria was ordered today by presiding steward E. J. Wilson Dunn of the Colwood Park Racing Association.

Jockey Fred Longo was set down for six months for using a whip with a wire attached in Monday's meeting at Sandown Park.

The ruling was announced today as follows:

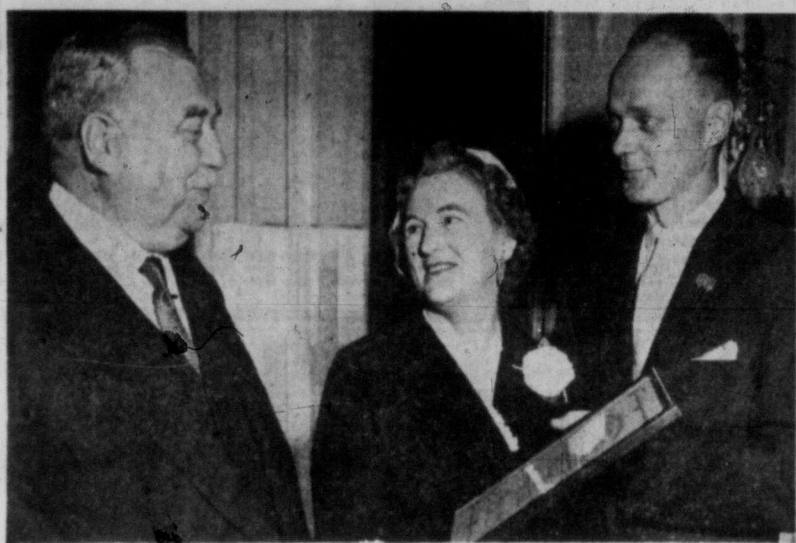

"For having in his possession a whip with a wire attached to the butt end in violation of rule 248A—No other appliance other than the ordinary whip shall be used in any way for the purpose of affecting the speed of a horse in a race—Jockey F. Longo is suspended for six months from this date Sept. 25, 1956 to March 6, 1957 by

2 Critically Hurt in Head-On Car Crash Near Parsons Bridge

Two persons were injured critically in a head-on highway crash near Parsons Bridge at 1:10 this afternoon.

Victims are believed to be Archdeacon Robert Little, 42 Kildew Road, Colwood, and his wife.

Police and hospital authorities refused to confirm identification.

A small Austin car registered in the name of Archdeacon Little was in collision with a Kirk Coal Co. flat deck truck outside the Crown and Anchor Auto Court about one-quarter of a mile beyond Parsons Bridge.

TRUCKER UNHURT

Truck driver was reported to be Elvin Slater, 1308 Douglas, who was uninjured.

Extent of injuries to the couple in the car was not known but eyewitnesses said it was obvious both were badly hurt.

The man was trapped under the wreckage of the car and police had difficulty releasing him.

The car was demolished. Doors were torn off and bits and pieces littered the highway at the crash scene for a distance of 100 yards. Roof was ripped open. It was hardly recognizable as an automobile.

The truck careened off the south side of the highway, straddling a ditch.

Both victims were rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital emergency where they were undergoing treatment at press time.

Three Bandits Charged In Vancouver Bank Job

VANCOUVER (CP)—Three men were charged today with armed robbery in connection with an $8,262 hold-up of an east-end branch of the Royal Bank of Canada Monday afternoon.

David Auld, 24; Harry Lyons, 33, and Carl Fundytus, 27, were to appear in police court later today.

Three armed bandits wearing black masks held 13 persons at bay while they rifled a cashier's till minutes before closing time.

All were arrested within two hours in an upstairs suite a few blocks from the robbed bank after a neighbor told police he had seen the men enter the building carrying what appeared to be a rifle wrapped in a blanket.

The wife of one of the three, arrested in a raid that resulted in recovery of all the money, will probably not be charged, police said.

The holdup, fourth in 10 years at the bank, was executed with exacting precision in about one minute, witnesses said.

The bandits' flight from the bank was punctuated by one warning pistol shot.

Teen-Agers Stage Rock-Roll Rumpus In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two thousand Vancouver teen-agers smashed benches, screamed and fought Monday night as they turned a rock 'n' roll concert into a near-riot.

The star of the show, singer "Little Richard," was rescued by police after a crowd of juveniles mobbed him.

France Pledges Try to Block Nasser in UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—French delegate Bernard Cornut-Gentille said today his country will fight Egypt's attempt to have the United Nations Security Council debate Egyptian charges against France in the Suez Canal controversy.

Egypt has issued its own call for security council intervention in the dispute. It came after Britain and France had asked the council to consider the situation created by Egypt's July 26 nationalization of the 103-mile waterway.

The council meets Wednesday for the first time on the Suez crisis.

SWEATING OUT PENNANT FEVER

Expectation, examination and, finally, exasperation are just three of the many moods expressed by manager Fred Haney whose Milwaukee Braves clung to a slender half-game lead over Brooklyn Dodgers in feverish National League pennant race today. With season drawing to close, NL pennant is still anyone's bunting. This afternoon Milwaukee led Cincinnati 6-1 at the end of seventh. Dodgers meet Phillies tonight. (See Sports Pages.)

Judge Delays Decision on Rock Workers

VANCOUVER (CP)—A British Columbia Supreme Court justice Monday reserved decision on an application to commit eight striking rock workers for contempt after questioning the right of foreign interests to dictate to laborers in B.C.

"I have no sympathy with the idea that somebody in a foreign land is going to dictate the interests of workers here," said Mr. Justice Harry Sullivan.

The eight are members of the Tunnel and Rockworkers Union of Canada, which is engaged in a jurisdictional fight with the International Hodcarriers and Laborers Union.

More than 2,000 rock workers are on strike throughout B.C. in support of the tunnel union's claim to recognition and six large construction projects have been affected.

The eight brought into court Monday have been picketing a hydro project at Upper Campbell Lake in defiance of an injunction obtained two weeks ago by the companies.

They are Steve Chalanski, William Windsor, Roy Finch, T. Farrell, Russell Davis, Fergus Corkery, C. Mage and Joe Loftus.

MOST UNIONS

When Mr. Justice Sullivan argued the rights of B.C. workers against dictation by United States unions, A. Campbell DesBrisay, counsel for the Construction Association of British Columbia, said most unions in the province are in the same position.

"It applied in the days of coal labor too," replied Mr. Justice Sullivan.

He said it was "most unsatisfactory" that the other side is not represented. "I almost have to take on the job of acting as counsel for them."

Mr. DesBrisay said there has been a "flagrant contempt which should not be passed over."

Mr. Justice Sullivan questioned whether there had been any intention on the part of the rock workers to flout the court order.

Counsel for the companies said he will apply for permission to serve notices of contempt proceedings "by substitution" on William Hunchuck, secretary, and Arthur Andres, president of the tunnel workers union, who he said "are apparently evading notice."

Canine Round-Up Under Study In Esquimalt

Problem of dogs without licences was pondered Monday night by Esquimalt Council.

According to councillors J. E. Carey and G. K. Sammon, "only a very small minority" of dog-owners buy licences for their dogs.

The situation is now "a little beyond" the licence inspector, said Reeve A. C. Wurtle.

Council authorized the reeve to investigate a possible agreement with the SPCA for rounding up strays.

Esquimalt "might have to set up our own pound," said Coun. James Bryant.

MISSING since Aug. 7 and until two days ago listed as drowned in Ontario's Oblong Lake, William Gray returned to his Toronto home Saturday, where his wife and two children "mourned" his "death."

$2 'Give and Take' Deal Puts Household-ers In Esquimalt on Municipal Voters' List

If you want to get on the municipal voters' list in Esquimalt this year, you'll have to offer clerk J. W. Allen $2.

He'll refuse it—but your name will be added to the list.

The offer-and-refusal decision, soon to become a by-law, was made at a meeting of Esquimalt Council Monday night.

Council has long been plagued by $5 road and $2 poll taxes, abolished in the municipality earlier.

Waddya Hear?

THREE OF US sat in a radio studio last Friday while the engineer played back the program we had just recorded. None of us was experienced in radio.

My reaction was the same as it has been on the other two occasions when I've worked on "taped" broadcast. I was wondering why the mechanical equipment distorted my voice the way it did. The other two men on the program sounded natural—maybe a little tense, but the voices were their own. Mine seemed to have been borrowed and didn't fit very well.

It's disillusioning to hear yourself as others hear you. What I have to say emerges from the amplifier packaged in the vocal equivalent of a battered old orange crate, splintered along the sides and jagged at the edges.

I was feeling a little disappointed that this should happen to me, while other people sound normal, when one of the others on the program remarked:

"I don't know how it strikes you, but my voice is completely foreign to me, coming over the radio. You fellows sound like you do in ordinary conversation. I'd never recognize myself."

The third member of the party held the same views on his own voice. Me, I didn't say anything.

PHYSICAL EXPLANATION

Maybe there's a physical explanation for this difference in the tone that strikes an audience's ear and that which is transferred to the ear of the individual who's talking. Or maybe we just don't hear ourselves. Certainly I've listened to some speeches that would be pretty hard on the persons making them if they were listening.

Anyhow, to me, I don't sound like me on the radio. And that has revived an old-doubt on the certainty of things that assailed me years ago.

When I was a youngster a thoughtful man asked me the color of a sign we were looking at. I said it was red. He agreed it was red. But, he asked, was the red that I saw the same as the red that he saw? Did my eye have the same reaction that his did? Perhaps, he suggested, the color impact which he had learned to call red and I had learned to call red, as far as identification was concerned, might be entirely different to each of us. Possibly, he added, that might account for an individual's inclination to prefer one color to another.

His proposition left me confused and unsettled. Up to that time I'd figured that red was red and the same red to everybody.

Until much more recently I'd figured a certain sound was the same to all ears—making allowances, of course, for degrees of deafness. After hearing my own voice on a record I realize it isn't what I thought.

SENSORY DIFFERENCES

Ever since I could discriminate, I've believed that we have different tastes meaning how you react to what you place on your palate. Some people like tripe. I can do without it very easily. Some people like to eat fish. My interest in them ceases when they're in the boat.

Now if somebody steps up and tells me that when I lay hands on something, the way it feels to me is probably entirely different to the way it feels to somebody else, or that when I smell something, the aroma strikes differently the olfactory sense of other folk, I'll be completely and thoroughly confused.

Once, long time ago, I thought I had made a great discovery when I read the story of the blind men and the elephant. You remember it. The blind men each touched a separate part of the animal. The one who felt the elephant's leg thought the animal very like a tree. The one who stumbled into its side thought it very like a wall, and so on.

The moral of the story was that while each was partly in the right, all of them were wrong. Sure they were. And how do we know that their sensory reactions would have been the same even if each had touched the same part of the creature?

How do you know anything for sure, with the obvious variations there are even in the senses?

YOUR HEALTH

New Brain-Quieting Drug

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

In a recent meeting in Jaipur, India, Dr. E. R. Soni told about Sileadin, a new drug for the calming of the brain. It was made from six Ayur-Vedic or ancient Indian medicines. This work in India gives the lie to all those many persons who have written me recently that we doctors are so stubborn and narrow-minded that not only will we not investigate or use medicines found by laymen, but we will throw all the power of organized medicine back of movements to stop the use of such drugs. The pressure on us physicians, to find cures for many diseases is so great that we will try anything that has been shown to be useful and not too dangerous. Imagine a physician refusing to cure his beloved wife or child or mother of cancer simply because the drug had been found by a layman! This is utterly silly and beyond belief; and yet of late people so well educated that they could write a neat letter have been telling me that this is what my profession is doing on a big scale!

WHAT MAKES CRANKS

Always, in the past, whenever scientists have found a wonderful new remedy, like vaccination for smallpox or antitoxin for diphtheria or vaccination against typhoid fever, or now, vaccination against polio, thousands of well-intentioned people have banded together to fight the use of the new treatment. Always, of course, they have found some ammunition. In the early days of any new treatment, while it is being tested, and doctors are learning to use it, a few accidents are bound to happen. With cowpox, passed as it was at first from person to person, there were occasional contaminations with smallpox virus or pus, or even syphilis. With protective serums, there were a few deaths due to the injection of horse serum into children highly allergic to such material; and in the case of the Salk vaccine, there were a (relatively) very few deaths due to the entrance of live virus into some ampules containing the medicine.

If the fighters against medical health measures could, or would, fight it fair it would not be so bad, but many of these people get so angry that they get full of hate. They misrepresent and they attack viciously. Whenever I get a letter from one of these persons, saying he hopes that I and my children will some day die in agony so that I may expiate my crimes against animals, I know well the type of person with whom I am dealing. The fellow sounds exactly like the anti-vaccinationists, and anti-vaccinationists and some of the devoted friends of quacks who often write me.

These people regard medicine, physicians, health officers and medical research workers with a violent and deadly hatred. Their letters are full of obscenities, with personal attacks and accusations of moral turpitude. Some day I must publish a selection from these letters—they might deter many kindly people from giving large sums of money to these people so that they can better carry on their campaigns of vilification and of obstruction to the adoption of valuable public health measures.

What is sad is that their campaigns of misinformation—cause many parents to hesitate, and to deny their children the great protection that modern vaccinations can give. I will never forget visiting once with a woman who, for years, had been in the forefront of rights against vaccines and sera. When we got rather friendly, I asked her how she had come to be so bitter against medicine and the medical profession. She said, "Years ago, I refused to let my two children have diphtheria antitoxin and they died of the disease. Ever since, all that stands between me and an avenging conscience is my strong conviction that the antitoxin would have been not only useless but harmful. Can't you see? I've got to believe that, and in order to believe it, I have got to devote my life to preaching it." Poor woman, she had to go on believing this even as she watched and saw antitoxin all but wipe out that awful disease—diphtheria—which once almost every child in the world had to have. In 1927 it almost killed me and it almost killed my mother.

HANDICAP BECOMES ASSET

I read that Dr. H. E. Page, of the office of naval research, has just advised the armed services to employ totally deaf persons around military airfields where the noise of jet engines is so terrific that it not only deafens but tends to deafen the maintenance men. This can be good news to many deaf men who are now having difficulty in finding employment.

I am reminded of a situation in parts of the Orient where, at Saturnalian banquets, the musicians are blind and hence not likely to embarrass the guests by looking on. It is good when a man can turn a handicap into an asset!

Union-Wrecking Held Chief Aim Of U.S. 'Right-to-Work' Laws

By AB KENT

"Right-to-work" legislation throws the U.S. Bill of Rights out the window, Washington State Federation of Labor president Edward M. Weson told 70 Victoria office union members Monday.

The stocky, ebullient speaker—a unionist since 1910—is a leading opponent of Initiative 198, a proposed state bill which organized labor claims will destroy recognized union rights.

He warned his listeners, members of local 300 Office Employees' International Union, to be wary of any moves made to have similar legislation enacted in B.C.

"The title is deceitful," he said, "because right-to-work laws give no one the right to work."

He referred to the proposal as "right-to-wreck."

In effect, right to work legislation alters government policy toward unions, making policy anti-union or anti-labor, Mr. Weson said. Such a law would make it illegal for a union-management agreement to be renewed or extended, thereby destroying union security, labor's greatest ally, he pointed out.

In addition, the law would regulate the affairs of unions and actions of their officers.

Some unionists refer to the legislation—already passed in 17 American states—as "right-to-scab," meaning the state condones strike-breaking, thus depriving organized labor of its most respected bargaining instrument.

Four states, partly through efforts of labor, have repealed right-to-work legislation, said Mr. Weson.

In Washington, labor has united to spend $69,000 in the first six months of 1956 campaigning against Initiative 198, for which a state-wide petition was circulated by management-backed Job Research Inc.

Labor first set about defeating the petition, which required 50,000 signatures of voters to be put on the Nov. 6 state election ballot.

The petition gained 60,109 signatures, 186,000 fewer than Job Research Inc. anticipated.

A total of 3,000,000 pieces of anti-198 literature were distributed.

NO BODYGUARD

"We've been in a very interesting and exciting cold war with these people (Job Research Inc.), I'm supposed to be a zoon or labor baron, but I can go down back alleys without a bodyguard."

Initiative 198 is on the ballot

Small Corms Best For Good Gladioli

The first time I grew gladioli the corms which were planted were quite small, but at digging time they were three and four inches across.

After drying and cleaning, these were proudly displayed to a local grower who immediately advised they be given away, or cut like a potato set, before replanting.

It was then I learned that a corm about one inch across, and slightly taller than its wide, high crowned) is considered the planting size which produces the best spike of flowers.

The larger the corm becomes the more growth buds it makes, which means more than one spike of flowers to be nourished by a single root system. This, of course, means poorer quality of flowers.

When the stock of one-inch corms runs low it is possible to increase the quantity by cutting the larger corms at planting time, dusting the cut surfaces with fine sulphur.

Gentle folding back of the jacket, or loose skin, will expose the growth buds on the top of the corm, and wedge shaped pieces, each containing one bud, can be cut.

The lesson we learn from this is to keep the corms which approximate one inch in diameter and have high centres, and dispose of the larger sizes which have become flattened.

TELLS TRUTH ABOUT MOVIE STARS

"Often people ask me, how is it so many actresses who are 'older' can still play glamour-girl parts? It's simple. It's not how old you are... but how old you look! These actresses just don't happen to stay young-looking... they've got certain secrets."

A NEW COSMETIC BEAUTY DISCOVERY

It is no secret that the most important step to beauty is the kind of makeup you use. For years science has known that powdered makeup clogs your skin's pores and enlarges your pores. That powdered makeup prevents the natural skin oils from functioning properly.

Finally after thousands of tests, science found a SUPER LANOLIN LIQUID MAKEUP that does not require the use of harmful, pore-clogging powder. That does not become flaky, caky, or blotchy. It does not harden your skin—dry out your skin. And this was just the beginning!

THE SECOND AND GREAT-EST DISCOVERY OF ALL

But science was not satisfied with a makeup that just covered up blemishes. They wanted to CORRECT BLEMISHES! After hundreds of additional tests came the greatest achievement of all. They found by blending a new wonder discovery called Sorbital into this Super Lanolin Liquid Makeup... they combined a COVE-UP WITH A MIRACULOUS SKIN CONDITIONER!

You can actually feel this new Sorbital-Liquid Makeup simply return the makeup for your full money back. It has cost you absolutely nothing. But keep the Ern Westmore Hollywood Beauty Kit as a FREE GIFT!

For Free Gift you MUST Act Now! Charles Antell's new Super Lanolin Makeup is priced to sell at $5.00 for a full 6 months' supply. Your Hollywood Beauty Kit is also a $5.00 value. But if you act now on this introductory offer you get the $5.00 Hollywood Beauty Kit ABSOLUTELY FREE! But this offer will not be repeated. ED BEFORE! And remember! This revolutionary new makeup goes on so smoothly, so evenly, so naturally, you need no powder.

'God Loves a Sinner, But Hates His Sinful Rebellious Ways'

By DINAH KERR, Times Church Editor

First layman ever to occupy the pulpit of Christ Church Cathedral, evangelist Tom Rees told a congregation of 1,300 Monday night, "God loves the sinner but hates his sinful, rebellious ways."

The public meeting was the third of 17 planned for the Inter-Church Evangelistic Mission with the world-renowned Rees. Majority of the congregation was Anglican with United Church members second, Baptists third, and a scattering of other denominations.

Evangelist Rees termed the church's opening prayers and hymns "very inspiring, but rather difficult."

"But we've got through the difficult part," he said. "Now we can get down to business."

He asked all Victorians to pray daily for the mission, themselves and the ministers.

"I honestly believe if many in our congregation spent the same amount of time on their knees as they do in talking about their ministers behind their backs, the world would be much easier," he said.

Finally, he asked, "Please pray for me."

"Gladly," called a man in the back pews.

"Thank you," said Rees.

Then he began his address on the theme, "God Is Love."

"There are a lot of things in the world today that we refer to as love, but it is not really love at all," he said.

"We speak very glibly of the love of a man for a woman, but it is often nothing but base lust, selfishness and greed."

Real love is a consuming desire for and delight in someone's highest good.

"The only people we really want to love are those whom we ourselves love."

"So often we measure the love of God by our love of others," he cried. "But if they should turn against us, our love will shrivel up."

He said that God loves man in spite of his sins. "He loves the sinner but at the same time, God hates our sinful, rebellious ways."

"Where there is real love, there must be real hatred."

"Why is God so terribly down on sin? Because our sin and rebellion is the foot of all poverty, fear, suffering, war, inequality and cause of death."

"One of the biggest problems of eternity . . . are you following closely? . . . pray God you are . . . is will God let us into Heaven in spite of our sins?" He paused. "Impossible. Or will he condemn us and let love and mercy go to the winds?"

"No, my friends," he said. "He has devised a means for our salvation. He sent Jesus Christ to bear our sins that we might remain in righteousness. The Cross above everything else, brings the assurance to all of us of the love of God."

He asked for complete silence as the congregation left the church—"Because if God's been speaking it's awfully hard isn't it, if His voice is drowned out by conversation about the speaker or the singing."

Rees was introduced by Archbishop Harold E. Sexton who said he was "honored" that the first layman to occupy the pulpit was a man of such magnitude.

Prayers were conducted by Rev. G. R. Easter, First Baptist Church.

Another meeting will be held at Christ Church Cathedral tonight at 8. Rees will conduct lunch-hour meetings at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church daily to next Friday, from 12.10 to 12.40 p.m.

BETWEEN TIMES By MONTE ROBERTS

I have been asked to tell all I know about Sea Cadets. The reason is, you may be meeting a Sea Cadet face to face any minute now, and you should know how to treat him, such as saying "Ahoy," or "Scupper my bilges," or "square that rig, mate," or even "dig that mate, square."

(As you can see, fortunately I do not know very much about Sea Cadets. However.)

Sea Cadets do not necessarily go to sea, or at least not very much, until they are too old to be Sea Cadets, which is eventually, when a great many of them do.

Before they are too old to be Sea Cadets, Sea Cadets learn a great many useful things, such as all about half hitches. When they are too old to be Sea Cadets, they learn about whole hitches, especially if there happens to be a war going on at the time.

Sea Cadets have nothing to do with the Navy, as such, but the Navy is glad to have them around, which is why the Navy League (which also has nothing to do with the Navy, being all civilians) supports the Sea Cadets, thus making everything very confusing but I am sure it will come out all right in the end.

Sea Cadets rarely, if ever, wind up in juvenile court or any other court, which is probably due to something lacking in their training.

Sea Cadets are not a drain on the expenditures of the Department of National Defence, not that they wouldn't like to be, but because the Dept. of Nat. Def. has other drains to drain its expenditures down.

Sea Cadets have an establishment in Victoria on which the Navy League pays taxes, just as gladly, cheerfully, and joyfully as any other taxpayer.

Sea Cadets spend most of their time learning about "hup," and "ho," and "harch," and "tennn-SHUN."

But once in a long time Sea Cadets go around selling, of all things, oranges.

I presume Sea Cadets do this because oranges are good for you, and the small profit Sea Cadets make is good for Sea Cadets.

This brings us back to the point pointed out above—namely, you may be meeting a Sea Cadet face to face any minute now.

When you do, remember naval parlance and purchase: "Oranges, lots, Sea Cadets, for the assistance of."

'MUMS FOR VIEW NOT BREW

Feature of Victoria and District Chrysanthemum Society show at Britannia Branch Canadian Legion Wednesday and Thursday would be traditional Chinese beverage Chrysanthemum tea—but all blooms in show are too big to go into teapot, as pretty Victoria High School student, Verna Quan, demonstrates. Visitors will have to view the 'mums, not brew them.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

A valuable set of china, inscribed appropriately, will be presented to Toronto distance swimmer Cliff Lumsden by Victoria city council.

The gift will be a memento of his swim from Victoria to Port Angeles last month. He is the only swimmer ever to have completed a north-south crossing of the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

Chairman of council entertainment and reception committee, Ald. Austin Curtis, recommended the gift because he understood the swimmer has a closet full of trophies, and with his wife, is moving into his first home.

RCMP Pressing Search for Cayuga Money

Sailor Jailed For 18 Months

RCMP search for the missing money in the "Cayuga case" moved into high gear today, following sentence of 18 months in Esquimalt court Monday for AB Francis J. Cassidy, who confessed taking $14,522 from the ship's safe April 23, 1955.

He has accounted for about $2,900 of the money.

RCMP are also investigating possibility of an accomplice, although Cassidy's confession stated he was on his own in the theft.

Constable Douglas Rogers of "E" Detachment, Victoria, is in Ontario back-tracking the trail of Cassidy during the period he was in the east.

DISAPPEARED

He stated a large portion of the money was "cached" in Ontario, and when he returned to the cache he found it gone.

RCMP objective is to find who removed the money from the cache, and to check specifically on all aspects of Cassidy's story.

A general court order of restitution for the full amount of the money was issued Monday.

The order—rare in jurisprudence—says the wheels of the legal machinery so that any of the money found can be immediately returned to the public treasury.

BOUGHT PROPERTY

In one instance, Cassidy is believed to have bought property with a portion of the stolen funds. The court order will speed civil suit to recover proceeds of this or any other sales.

The "Cayuga Case" is still wide open on RCMP books, although the sentence imposed on Cassidy Monday closes the case against him personally. He is to serve his prison term in Oakalla.

FULL REPORT

Navy disciplinary action in the case will depend on Ottawa. Cassidy stated he took the money from an open safe, and a full report has been filed by the Pacific Command here with headquarters in Ottawa, which will decide if further action will be taken.

Cassidy's confession came after he gave himself up as a deserter. He went AWOL in Ontario, and followed a will-o-the-wisp course through the Eastern province before returning to Victoria to give himself up.

In Newtonville, Ont., the home town of the sentenced sailor, his father, J. F. Cassidy, told newsmen, "Someone must have put him up to it."

He said he was bewildered by his son's actions. "He has never been in any trouble of any sort before," Mr. Cassidy said.

On the civil jury are Francis Doherty, 825 Weald; Donald Elworthy, 3220 Beach; John DeCastri, 1659 St. Francis Wood; Frederick G. Usher, 2677 Dunlevy; Andrew Sheret, 3195 Cadboro Bay; Harold Haynes, 1587 Monterey; Ernest Hudson, 2164 Cubbon Drive; Ronald Page, 168 Barclay.

Aldermen in Quandary Over Goldstream Offer

An offer of $250,000 for mineral rights on city-owned land in Goldstream Park left city council finance committee in a quandary this morning.

Council has all but signed agreement with the provincial government to transfer the 784-acre park to the B.C. lands and forests department.

Also, according to the terms of the offer for mineral rights, the city could realize as little as $2,000 from the deal.

Decision was suspended until Mayor Percy Scurrah and Ald. W. F. Pinfold investigate mining possibilities in the area with the provincial mines department.

Long-Term Payment Plan

The committee heard a communication from Mrs. Winnifred Margaret Brewster, 640 Montreal Street, offering a total of $250,000 on a long-term payment plan. First payment would be $2,000 by Feb. 1, 1957. On August 1 another $5,000 would be paid and a like sum every year until 1961 when the balance would be paid.

The committee assumed, however, that if the mineral potential was disproved, the mining interests could withdraw from the deal.

"Will the government take over the park with strings on it?" asked Ald. Austin Curtis.

"The government has accepted the park. These people should apply to the government," said Ald. Pinfold. "There might be possibility of city revenue which would allow us to develop the park ourselves. But it might be years—and they might never strike anything."

Vein of Copper Into Park

Mayor Scurrah said he was informed the mining interest represented by Mrs. Brewster planned to extract copper from tailings of an old mine adjoining the city land. A tunnel in the old mine gave indication a vein of copper led into the Goldstream Park.

"They could pay $2,000 and experiment for a year, then if it is no good, quit," said Ald. Pinfold. "But where would we stand with the provincial government?"

The city has been trying to get the government to take over the park and develop it as a provincial camping and recreational area for several years. A deal negotiated in 1951 fell through. In June this year it was learned the province was willing to go ahead with the project.

City manager C. C. Wyatt made the suggestion that the mayor and chairman of the committee, Ald. Pinfold, investigate the matter with the mines department. The committee agreed and tabled the offer until a report is obtained.

Ex-Mayor's Secrecy Law Knocked Down

City council finance committee today reached general agreement to a watering down of former mayor C. L. Harrison's much-criticized procedure by law.

The amendments, which will legalize the rights of council committees to invite attendance at meetings by the press and others, and which reduce the powers of the mayor with respect to incoming mail, were suggested by Ald. Robert Macmillan.

Final approval by the committee to the amendments and recommendation to city council was tabled for minor changes in wording which must be made by city solicitor T. P. O'Grady.

The procedure, or "secrecy" by-law, as it was called, was passed in May, 1954, and was enforced, with respect to barring of the press from meetings, for a period of 20 months.

CHANGES MADE

Since election of Mayor Percy Scurrah last December, the press has been permitted to attend committee meetings, despite the by-law.

The clauses regarding mail, which will be changed, gave the mayor the right to deal with any letter he felt was defamatory, without it coming before council or council committee.

The amendments stipulate that all incoming mail shall be distributed to council committees or departments by the city clerk.

Mayor Percy Scurrah supported each proposal.

SHOPPING GUIDE

A Sale's a Perfect Time To Pick Up Extra Gifts

By PENNY SAVER

SALE! There's a sign that will lure me every time. If there are a few pennies to be saved, there I'll be. It's more than a few pennies, though, on the wonderful bargains I noted. The wise woman will stock up on shower, Christmas and birthday gifts, so that there's no mad rush to do last-minute shopping. Here's a perfect opportunity to buy some gift or household items at a greatly reduced price. Black panthers in any one of four sizes are at a popular price. A large one is $1, and a set of three smaller ones in varying sizes costs 79 cents.

A sandwich set comprised of a long serving plate and six matched side plates was $3, and has been put down to $1.98. Cups and saucers in a host of patterns were priced to $2.95 and are now $1.29 each. Six tinied tumblers with a cutwork spray pattern are yours for just $1. In another store I found eight tinied brandy glasses packed neatly for gift-giving. These are $1.50 for the set, and with the tumblers, would make a lovely gift, and all for less than $3.

Contour combs to keep your tresses where you want them are a boon to those with long hair. These combs, which I've already told you about, bend to fit your hair styling. Formerly available only in natural hair colors, brown, black, auburn and grey, now you can buy them in silver and gold. They're 39 cents a card, which holds either one large comb or two small ones.

You girls with glasses have probably looked at the "spec-grippers" that keep glasses from falling while you work, but you've usually decided that they were too old-fashioned for you, the modern miss. Well, change your tune—'cause now you can buy these handy grippers in five chain styles and in seven different colors. Clip the chain onto your glasses, hang the lightweight chain around your neck, and your precious glasses are given a very attractive form of insurance against breakage. In pastels or the silver or gold, these cost $2.95.

Call me at 2-3131 and I'll tell you where to find the items I've mentioned here in the column.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Here's What the Teenager Needs in the Way of Diet

Yesterday I wrote about the fatigue which often accompanies teen age. If this persists after you have taken advantage of the suggestions I am giving you, then you teenagers should have a physical checkup. Actually, young folks of this age group should have these regularly. It is particularly important during this period of rapid growth.

For instance, anemia can cause lacklustre and many adolescents are anemic because they eat incorrectly. In fact this is one of the poorest nourished of all age groups. This is a serious problem and it is sad that teenagers do not realize it.

Just when the food requirements are especially important to the swiftly growing young people they build trouble for themselves by eating incorrectly. We can easily see why this will happen unless the young person can be given an understanding of the vital needs of his body and the penalties of neglect.

When young folks gather at parties and for in between meal snacks they seldom have foods vital to health. They are more often of the devitalized classification. They provide calories and are not harmful except that they dull the appetite for the foods absolutely essential for good health and good looks.

Some of the diets and methods teen-age girls adopt in order to slim down to Movie Queen proportions are unbelievable. Unfortunately, the crazier these are the more they seem to appeal to girls of this age.

Each day every teenager should have:

One quart of milk.

One egg.

Some whole grain, enriched cereal and bread.

Variety in fresh vegetables, especially the green and yellow ones.

Citrus fruit or fruit juice or both.

Meat or fish or fowl.

Some fat, as in butter.

Because of the rapid bone growth most physicians advise a vitamin capsule, which contains vitamin D.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Popularity" which was written for teenagers, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 58. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Jockey Set Down Six Months At Sandown; Used Wire Whip

One of the stiffest sentences in the recent history of horse racing in Victoria was ordered today by presiding steward E. J. Wilson Dunn of the Colwood Park Racing Association.

Jockey Fred Longo was set down for six months for using a whip with a wire attached in Monday's meeting at Sandown Park.

The ruling was announced today as follows:

"For having in his possession a whip with a wire attached to the butt end in violation of rule 248A—No other appliance other than the ordinary whip shall be used in any way for the purpose of affecting the speed of a horse in a race—Jockey F. Longo is suspended for six months from this date. Sent. 25 1956 to March 6, 1957 by order of the steward, E. J. Wilson Dunn."

It is the second suspension of the meeting, jockey Jim Sivewright being set down Saturday for a period of five days for appearing in the jockeys' room in a condition unfit to ride.

Three Bandits Charged In Vancouver Bank Job

VANCOUVER (CP)—Three men were charged today with armed robbery in connection with an $8,262 hold-up of an east-end branch of the Royal Bank of Canada Monday afternoon.

David Auld, 24; Harry Lyons, 33, and Carl Fundytus, 27, were to appear in police court later today.

Three armed bandits wearing black masks held 13 persons at bay while they rifled a cashier's till minutes before closing time.

All were arrested within two hours in an upstairs suite a few blocks from the robbed bank after a neighbor told police he had seen the men enter the building carrying what appeared to be a rifle wrapped in a blanket.

The wife of one of the three, arrested in a raid that resulted in recovery of all the money, will probably not be charged, police said.

The holdup, fourth in 10 years at the bank, was executed with exacting precision in about one minute, witnesses said.

The bandits' flight from the bank was punctuated by one warning pistol shot.

CLERIC BADLY HURT IN HIGHWAY SMASH

FINAL BULLETINS

Two Killed in Seattle Car Crash

SEATTLE (AP)—Two persons were killed today in the crash of a new sedan into a utility pole at an intersection near the main downtown district.

One was identified as Ralph G. Chittenden, 68, a cargo checker at the Seattle army terminal. The other victim was believed to be his wife.

Algiers Battle Flares; Two Killed

ALGIERS (AP)—Moslem Nationalist rebels renewed their attacks in Algiers early today, killing two French soldiers on patrol during the curfew hours.

Monday, in an apparently well co-ordinated series of individual strikes, rebels killed two persons and wounded six others. Most of the victims were civilians on their way to work in the early morning hours.

Vancouver Ball Club Sale Closer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—President Leslie O'Connor of the Pacific Coast League says sale of the Vancouver Mounties by owner C. L. (Brick) Laws appears near.

Laws transferred his franchise to Vancouver from Oakland, Calif., after the 1955 season and for weeks has been reported offering the team for sale.

Yanks Seek Jobs on Suez Canal

PARIS (Reuters)—Five Americans who said they are seeking jobs as pilots with the Egyptian Suez Canal Authority, passed through Orly airport today on their way from New York to Cairo.

They tried to dodge reporters and photographers during an hour wait at Orly before taking off for Cairo by way of Rome and Athens.

Brink's Money Admitted as Evidence

BOSTON (AP)—Despite strong objections by the defence, $54,548 in bills seized from Brink's Inc. in the $1,219,000 hold-up of 1950 was admitted in evidence today at the trial of eight men for the robbery.

A bundle of money described by police as Brink's robbery money was taken in a raid on a building in the south end of Boston last June. Much of the money found at that time was mouldy and fragile.

MAN SHORTAGE

Services Drop To 2-Year Low

OTTAWA (CP)—Strength of Canada's armed forces has fallen to its lowest figure in two years.

The downward trend in service manpower comes at a time when the RCAF is looking for more personnel for three new CF-100 jet fighter squadrons and the navy needs more sailors to man its new destroyers.

A defence department spokesman said the strength of the forces at the end of July—latest figure available—was 115,982.

The breakdown: Navy, 18,824; army, 47,397; RCAF, 49,761.

Toward the close of 1954, service manpower stood at about 117,000. In March of the same year it was 112,500.

The manpower ceiling set for the armed forces is 120,000—20,000 for the navy, 49,000 for the army and 51,000 for the air force.

At the end of March last year, total strength stood at 118,077, the highest figure reached since the defence build-up started with outbreak of the Korean War in 1950.

The recent decline has been most evident in the navy and the air force. Since the start of the year, the navy has had a net loss of about 400 and the air force of about 600. The army has gained about 200.

An army official said the army is trying hard to recruit men, especially in the infantry, but is having trouble. He added that recruiting always appears to be slower in summer than in winter and particularly in prosperous times.

The shortage of army manpower is shown in the strength of the Regiment of Canadian

RCMP Talk to Clerk In New Red Spy Bid

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian civilian who tipped authorities to the espionage attempts of a Russian diplomat may have conveyed the feeling he knew more military secrets than actually was the case.

James Stanley Staples, former Rockcliffe Air Station clerk, said the Russians didn't seem to be too sure of just how much he knew. And he said he "acted a bit" during his acquaintanceship with them which may have conveyed the feeling that he knew a lot about defence developments.

His information to security officials led to the expulsion of Gennadi F. Popov, Russian embassy second secretary. Staples.

Ghouls Hunted In Alberni Cemetery Raid

(Special to the Times)
ALBERNI — The RCMP here is conducting a round-the-clock search for ghoulish vandals who Sunday night or early Monday morning raided a cemetery, dragged a body from a grave and desecrated several graves.

Residents were angry and horrified as police revealed the culprits—apparently drunk—pulled the corpse from its grave by tying a chain to its ankle.

The body was in the pauper's section of the Greenwood Cemetery.

CROSSES TORN

The unearthed body was left lying on the ground beside the grave.

In the veterans' section, 18 crosses were torn from grave-heads and placed to form barriers on the pathways between graves.

Teen-Agers Stage Rock-Roll Rumpus In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two thousand and Vancouver teen-agers smashed benches, screamed and fought Monday night as they turned a rock 'n' roll concert into a near-riot.

The star of the show, singer "Little Richard," was rescued by police after a crowd of juveniles mobbed him.

Canon's Car Demolished In Head-On

Archdeacon Robert Little, 75, and his wife Marion, 73, 42 Kildew Road, Colwood, were undergoing emergency treatment at St. Joseph's Hospital at 3 p.m. today after their car smashed head-on into a truck on Highway 1A near Parson's Bridge at 1.10.

The hospital refused to say how seriously the couple was hurt, although it was believed the archdeacon was gravely injured when crushed under the car following the accident.

The archdeacon's small Austin car was in collision with a Kirk Coal Co. flat deck truck outside the Crown and Anchor Auto Court about one-quarter of a mile beyond Parson's Bridge.

TRUCKER UNHURT

Truck driver was reported to be Elvin Slater, 1308 Douglas, who was uninjured.

The man was trapped under the wreckage of the car and police had difficulty releasing him.

The car was demolished. Doors were torn off and bits and pieces littered the highway at the crash scene for a distance of 100 yards. Roof was ripped open. It was hardly recognizable as an automobile.

The car was traveling out the old Island Highway and the truck was coming toward town. The car was spun around in the opposite direction to which it was traveling, and landed in a ditch on the north side of the highway.

The truck careened off the south side of the highway, straddling a ditch.

Archdeacon Little, who with his wife, served many years as priest-missionary in the diocese of Athabasca, went into semi-retirement in 1952 after two years as rector in Courtenay and Sandwich.

Recently he has been taking weekly services at Jordan River. He has lived at Colwood about four years.

Judge Delays Decision on Rock Workers

VANCOUVER (CP)—A British Columbia Supreme Court Justice Monday reserved decision on an application to commit eight striking rock workers for contempt after questioning the right of foreign interests to dictate to laborers in B.C.

"I have no sympathy with the idea that somebody in a foreign land is going to dictate the interests of workers here," said Mr. Justice Harry Sullivan.

The eight are members of the Tunnel and Rockworkers Union of Canada, which is engaged in a jurisdictional fight with the International Hodcarriers and Laborers Union.

More than 2,000 rock workers are on strike throughout B.C. in support of the tunnel union's claim to recognition and six large construction projects have been affected.

The eight brought into court Monday have been picketing a hydro project at Upper Campbell Lake in defiance of an injunction obtained two weeks ago by the companies.

They are Steve Chalanski, William Windsor, Roy Finch, T. Farrell, Russell Davis, Fergus Corkery, C. Mage and Joe Loftus.

MOST UNIONS

When Mr. Justice Sullivan argued the rights of B.C. workers against dictation by United States unions, A. Campbell DesBrisay, counsel for the Construction Association of British Columbia, said most unions in the province are in the same position.

"It applied in the days of coolie labor too," replied Mr. Justice Sullivan.

He said it was "most unsatisfactory" that the other side is not represented. "I almost have to take on the job of acting as counsel for them."

Mr. DesBrisay said there has been a "flagrant contempt which should not be passed over."

Mr. Justice Sullivan questioned whether there had been any intention on the part of the rock workers to flout the court order.

Counsel for the companies said he will apply for permission to serve notices of contempt proceedings "by substitution" on William Hunchuck, secretary, and Arthur Andres, president of the tunnel workers union, who he said "are apparently evading notice."

Canine Round-Up Under Study In Esquimalt

Problem of dogs without licences was pondered Monday night by Esquimalt Council.

According to councillors J. E. Carey and G. K. Sammon, "only a very small minority" of dog-owners buy licences for their dogs. The situation is now "a little beyond" the licence inspector, said Reeve A. C. Wurtele.

Council authorized the reeve to investigate a possible agreement with the SPCA for rounding up strays.

Esquimalt "might have to set up our own pound," said Coun. James Bryant.

$2 'Give and Take' Deal Puts Householders In Esquimalt on Municipal Voters' List

If you want to get on the municipal voters' list in Esquimalt this year, you'll have to offer clerk J. W. Allen $2.

He'll refuse it—but your name will be added to the list.

The offer-and-refusal decision, soon to become a by-law, was made at a meeting of Esquimalt Council Monday night.

Council has long been plagued by $5 road and $2 poll taxes, abolished in the municipality earlier this year. But they are still in by-law will allow Mr. Allen to refuse it.

Householders wishing to vote in the December municipal election must sign the necessary declaration at the municipal hall by Oct. 31.

Since the road and poll taxes are discriminatory and a "nuisance," councillors agreed to abolish the $2 levy.

Esquimalt householders still are required to offer $2, but the new

NEW YORK (AP) — Wayne Bethea of New York won a fifth-round technical knockout over Joe Bygraves Monday night when the British Empire heavyweight champion asked the referee to stop the fight at the end of the fifth round of a televised bout at St. Nicholas Arena. Bethea weighed 202½, Bygraves 198½.

MISSING since Aug. 7 and until two days ago listed as drowned in Ontario's Oblong Lake, William Gray returned to his Toronto home Saturday, where his wife and two children "mourned" his "death."

Canadian stations now broadcast by way of VHF (very high frequency). Each station transmits on a single channel.

Mr. Kendall, who made a survey of world TV for the film board several years ago, said his "six-cylinder" plan would provide a simple way for viewers to get a choice of programs in any given locality.

He said the plan is technically practicable now.

"If they were given the orders," he said, "electronic companies today could design such stations for about the same costs as single channel ones."

SHHH! DON'T TELL A SOLITARY SOUL

Three-Legged Surprise Awaits City Child After Leg Surgery

By MONTE ROBERTS

Shhh! Don't tell a soul, but there's a three-legged surprise waiting for four-year-old Mary Penneck when she returns to Victoria, two weeks from now, after an operation on her right leg at the Shrine Hospital, Portland.

The three-legged surprise is also four years old. His name is Skipper, and he's a springer spaniel, of great dignity and friendliness.

Mary—everybody calls her Button, because that's what she's as cute as—is bound to be pleased as well as surprised. Because Skipper used to live near her home, 330 Niagara, and Button used to wish Skipper were her very own dog.

Both Have Overcome Handicaps

Button has had trouble with her right leg ever since she was a tiny baby. And Skipper lost one of his legs in an accident. Both Button and Skipper have overcome their handicaps, so perhaps that's why they're so fond of each other.

How Skipper has now become Button's very own dog is one of those things which make life brighter for the SPCA and this newspaper.

Skipper's owners, who moved away from James Bay two years ago, brought him to the SPCA for adoption. Regrettably, they could no longer keep him.

So on Saturday, this newspaper ran Skipper's picture. Mrs. James Penneck, Button's mother, saw the photo, recognized Button's old pal—and the reunion was arranged.

Times to Run 'SPCA Guest List'

But don't tell a soul. This is to be a surprise for Button.

And the happy home secured for Skipper through this newspaper has engendered an idea.

The SPCA and the Times will team up to run a daily feature called "SPCA Guest List."

The list will describe the dogs "in residence" at the small animal shelter, 111 Wilson street.

It will be divided into two sections: "New arrivals" for the benefit of those who may have lost a pet which has turned up at the SPCA; and "Ready for adoption," listing those doggies who are anxious for a new home.

The new Times-SPCA feature will appear daily on the comic page commencing Wednesday.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.

(AP)—French delegate Bernard Cornut-Gentille said today his country will fight Egypt's attempt to have the United Nations Security Council debate Egyptian charges against France in the Suez Canal controversy.

Egypt has issued its own call for security council intervention in the dispute. It came after Britain and France had asked the council to consider the situation created by Egypt's July 26 nationalization of the 103-mile waterway.

The council meets Wednesday for the first time on the Suez crisis.

Guards. The regiment has four battalions which normally would have a strength of about 900 men each. But not one of the battalions has more than 500 men.

In a recent demonstration for the Toronto Board of Trade at Camp Petawawa, Ont., one of the guards battalions carried out a mock infantry attack in company strength. But instead of using only one company, it had to press the entire battalion into service because of the shortage of infantrymen.

The 1956-57 winter paper on defence, issued by the government earlier this year, said: "Provision has been made for some increase in strength in the navy and air force."

fired June 29 from his Rockcliffe job because he was considered a doubtful security risk, said Popov was the kingpin in Russian attempts to get information from him. He said he gave them nothing. Popov was ordered out of the country, and left Aug. 12.

Canadian officials said the expulsion was the first of its kind in Canada since those that developed out of the sensational 1945 spy disclosures of Igor Gouzenko.

The 30-year-old Mr. Staples talked with RCMP security officials Monday night.

They accused him of being the original source of newspaper stories on the affair to get his name in the papers. Staples denied this. The espionage attempt was disclosed Saturday in the brief of the Pan-Canadian anti-Communist League which demanded the Canadian government exercise greater surveillance and control over Soviet embassy officials.

Staples said he did not know how the Pan-Canadian League got hold of the information. He had not been in touch with the league.

Husband, Wife Slain With Ax In Fashionable Quebec Suburb

SILLERY, Que. (CP)—A 55-year-old man and his wife were found dead today in their fashionable home in this Quebec city suburb. Police said they were hacked to death with an axe.

Dead are: Austin J. Walsh, 55, machinery broker's employee, and his wife, 48.

Capt. J. Alphonse Matte of Quebec provincial police homicide squad said the bodies were found by a friend who wondered why Walsh did not show up for work this morning.

He said the man entered the home and found the bodies of the couple lying in pools of blood.

The home was a scene of horror, he said, with blood splattered over floor and walls.

Capt. Matte said Walsh's automobile has disappeared. He described the car as a dark blue 1955 Chevrolet bearing licence number 56-980.

Capt. Matte said anyone found in the vehicle should be arrested.

Ike May Unveil New Farm Plans In Tonight's Answer to Adlai

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower flies to Peoria, Ill., today for tonight's first major farm speech of his re-election campaign. Adlai E. Stevenson challenged him in advance to spell out precisely what he has done to fulfill his 1952 farm pledges.

The speech and visit to mid-west will: —Give Eisenhower his first opportunity to answer Stevenson's charges that the administration has brought about a "farm depression."

—Provide the President a platform for announcing any new administration plans to raise farm income.

—STEVENS, speaking Monday night in Oklahoma City, maintained that in 1952 Mr. Eisenhower promised farmers to continue price supports at 90 per cent of parity and later said:

Legion padre here, Rev. Glen Stevenson said "how terrible. I buried most of those boys up there."

Chance for Senate Reform

OTTAWA OBSERVERS ARE speculating on the possible appointment of Mr. George Drew to the Senate. Sixteen vacancies exist in the Upper Chamber and some are expected to be filled before Christmas.

If Mr. Drew's health and vitality are restored, he would be an excellent appointee. Not only has his career in public office marked him as a man of distinguished service to Canada, his criticism of the Senate itself would make him a valuable influence in that body.

A little more than a year ago Mr. Drew had occasion to discuss the Upper Chamber. At that time it contained 26 vacant seats—some of them left empty for an unreasonably long time. The then Leader of the Opposition in the Commons gave sound warning that unless improvements were made in it, the people of Canada would finally abolish the Senate.

One of the obvious improvements would be a system of appointment to make the Senate more fully representative of the life of Canada, political and otherwise. It is now so overwhelmingly dominated by Liberals that it cannot hope to function as it should.

The selection of Mr. Drew, combined with that of Mr. Hackett, a life-long Conservative chosen by the Prime Minister among the appointments he made in July, 1935, would at least indicate that Liberal Party membership is not a prerequisite. Nor should the choice of men or women from other parties end there. As an agency of Government, the Senate needs broader representation. Since substantial elements in our population endorse the policies of the CCF and Social Credit, surely they, too, deserve recognition.

Beyond that the Prime Minister has a broad field from which to choose entirely outside political ranks. There are men and women contributing greatly to Canadian life in science, arts, industry, education, the professions, and many other constructive spheres who could give strength to the agency of government created as a chamber of studied second thought.

It is 35 years since Prime Minister King promised reform. Demands for it have risen and fallen since that date. The actual constitutional issue involved may be difficult. The practical means of effecting change are not, however, impossible. The Senate can be altered by appointments which transform it from its present overwhelmingly Liberal Party character.

With sixteen vacancies to fill, an infusion of new elements could start it toward the recovery of public respect it so obviously requires.

If changes are not made, then the Senate may view with some misgivings the evolutionary fate of those creatures which failed to adjust themselves to new environments. They became extinct.

Top of Them All

AS THE FIRST NATIVE CANADIAN to win the U.S. National women's amateur golf championship, Marlene Stewart has established her own special place in our hall of fame.

Miss Stewart had already gained a formidable reputation, having won, among other top laurels, the British Amateur in 1933. Her record this year includes seven national and other championships besides last weekend's triumph. She has won almost every major women's title in the world.

Not since Sandy Sommerville won the U.S. Amateur in 1932 has such a golfing honor come to Canada.

Like most real champions, Marlene preserves a quietness and modesty about her achievements that adds further to her popularity. At five foot two, and 115 pounds, she demonstrates that mere size does not mean everything in sport. Her coordination, timing and above all her sheer grit are the secrets of her success. It took championship calibre to overcome a four-hole deficit last Saturday and sweep to a brilliant victory.

Marlene's expressed determination to "stay an amateur all my life" seems to put the whole picture in perspective. In the classic meaning of amateurism she plays for the love of the game. That, too, adds further lustre to her brilliance as a Canadian sports heroine.

They're Still at It

IT IS DISTURBING, BUT HARDLY surprising, to learn that the Russians are still spying assiduously on Canadian security secrets from the protected vantage point of their embassy in Ottawa. It is admittedly the duty of an ambassador to seek to learn all that he can of the country to which he is assigned. But when he or his assistants try to subvert Canadians, to encourage treason among the people whose guests they are, the limits of decency have been exceeded.

This was notoriously the case in the famous Gouzenko espionage incident of the immediate post-war days. The more recent affair involving information on Canada's new jet fighter is equally reprehensible although less serious.

The case is particularly unpleasant in view of the fact that the undercover work was going on even while various Soviet ministers were touring the country and urging Canadians to greater friendship and exchange of technological knowledge.

It is fortunate that the Canadian civilian concerned knew little of the information the Russians sought, and that he saw the implications of the web into which he was being drawn before it was too late. His experience will be a warning to all others in positions of trust where Canadian security is concerned. The cold war is still very much alive and being waged on all fronts.

Preparing for Halloween

THE CITY POLICE COMMISSION has before it certain suggestions for handling rowdy mobs on Halloween. The proposal has been advanced that the regular force be augmented by the addition of service and other groups to prevent the recurrence of ugly situations such as that prevailing on Yates Street last year.

It is unfortunate, and certainly no credit to the city, that it must make special provisions to cope with hoodlums on a night which was once reserved largely for children's fun. Unfortunate or not, it is necessary to have the authorities take more drastic action than was the case in 1935.

Last Halloween saw a condition in Victoria's downtown streets which should not be countenanced again. Nor should citizens read the next morning that the attitude of young hoodlums deterred police from taking action for fear of the consequences.

Whether the force is assisted by other authorized groups or not, Victorians will expect its members to enforce the law. Few consequences can be more damaging than those arising from lack of action by the police.

How far the authorities should proceed with their curb on fireworks is a matter which the police commission should be able to decide. The city has a by-law which gives them almost complete control in the matter.

Suspended Publication

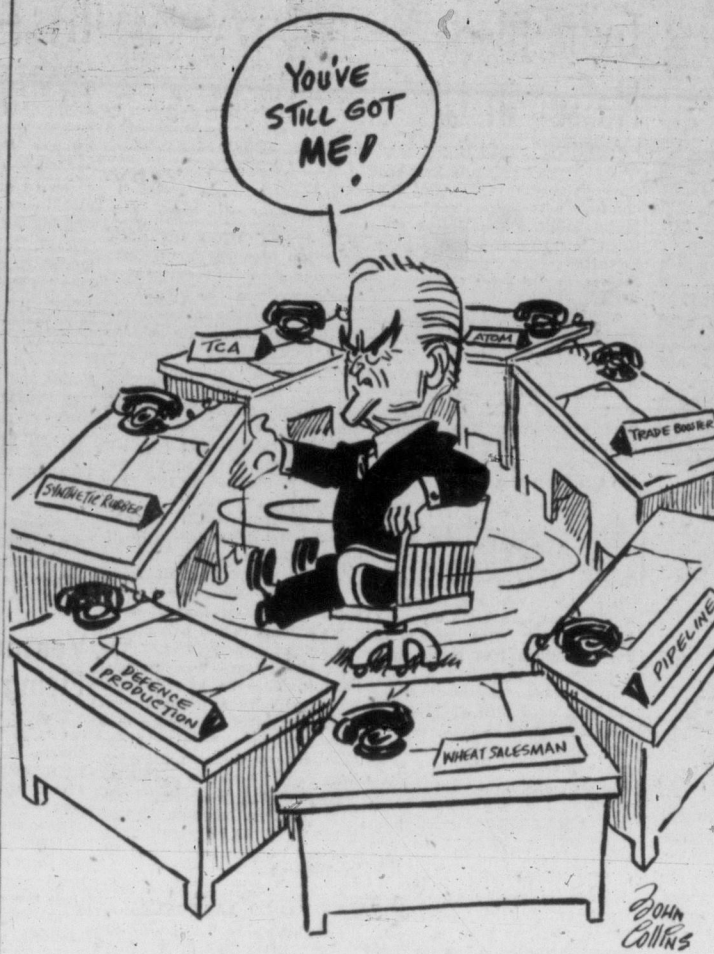

IT IS TYPICAL OF THE EAST-West situation today that thousands of copies of magazines destined to explain Russia to the U.S., and other thousands to do the reverse job, are withheld from distribution by international red tape.

It was last December that the two countries agreed to exchange propaganda magazines—the U.S. to distribute "Amerika" in Russia and the Soviet Union to issue "USSR" on this side of the Atlantic. By July huge supplies of both publications were ready for shipment overseas to explain each nation to the other and thereby foster better relations.

But a hitch developed when the U.S. State Department became worried about the cut the Soviet distribution agency was going to take from the sale price of "Amerika." The matter has been tangled in negotiation ever since. And the prospective readers in each country must await a solution to the problem before they are allowed to read of the cultural advantages of the other.

It appears to be a situation made to measure for Gilbert and Sullivan, except that truth, while stranger than fiction, is also frequently more tragic.

Engineer Shortage 'Overestimated'—C. D. Howe

FROM WASHINGTON By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP

The Stevenson Formula

ADLAI STEVENSON and his vast entourage have been in and out of Washington during this past week, exuding confidence at every pore. Politicians exude confidence as instinctively as cows give milk. But in this case the confidence seems genuine—at least to the extent that Stevenson and his advisers really do believe that he has a chance to beat Dwight D. Eisenhower, and a pretty good chance at that. Moreover, they have a shrewdly fashioned formula for achieving this David-and-Goliath miracle. The first part of the formula calls for Stevenson to stage, as a historian in his entourage put it, "the most energetic campaign in the history of the American Presidency."

From here on out, Stevenson will be here, there, and everywhere, following a staggering schedule of speech-making, hand-shaking, and fence-mending. These days, moreover, Stevenson seems actually to enjoy the man-killing task of campaigning. Whereas in 1952, he was given to asking plaintively "do I really have to do that?" he is now a bear for punishment, according to his aides.

The purpose of this fierce expenditure of energy is not only to get Stevenson's views to the people. It is also to present a contrast between the vigorous Stevenson and the relatively sedentary Eisenhower thus subtly underlining the health issue. And another purpose is to identify Stevenson to the maximum extent with local Democratic candidates, and thus with the Democratic party.

On the Run

For the Stevenson strategists, citing the three-year Democratic trend culminating in the Maine victory, are certain that, on a straight party basis, the Democrats have the Republicans on the run.

"We'll take both houses, I'm dead sure of that," one top Democrat remarked. "The only question is whether Ike can survive his party's defeat."

By the same token, every effort will also be made by Stevenson and the astute Stevenson propagandists to identify the President with the Republican party. Another part of the Stevenson formula as applied to Eisenhower is to bear down hard on the "part-time President" line, and, of course, to centre the attack on Vice-President Nixon as the President's potential successor.

The Stevenson formula also calls for making full use of the Democratic party's ambassadors to special voting groups, in which the Democrats are rich, and the Republicans notably poor.

The chief ambassador to the farmers is, of course, Estes Kefauver, whose popularity among farmers is a striking if somewhat mysterious phenomenon. Before the campaign ends, Kefauver will have displayed his special brand of folksiness in just about every important farm county in the country.

The chief ambassador to the Catholics, who have in recent years shown a strong tendency to shift their allegiance to the Republicans is Sen. John Kennedy of Massachusetts.

Kennedy's speaking schedule is almost as staggering as Stevenson's. He will get an assist, of course, from such other important Catholic Democrats as Mayor Robert Wagner of New York and Democratic leader Pat Brown of California.

Minority Groups

Chief ambassador to the minority groups will be Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, whose popularity among Negroes and other minorities is another remarkable phenomenon. Mrs. Roosevelt already has accepted engagements to speak for Stevenson in a whole series of key areas.

To counter the immense political advantage which any incumbent Republican enjoys, Stevenson also has the support of a whole series of new Democratic governors—an asset he lacked in 1952. His chief preconversion rival, New York's Gov. Averell Harriman, is pitching in manfully, and even Ohio's Frank Lausche, who has held himself carefully aloof in the past, is working hard for Stevenson.

Stevenson also has far more enthusiastic and energetic labor support than he had in 1952. Finally, Stevenson himself will key his whole campaign to presenting himself as the "champion of the people."

He is well aware, as he was not in 1952, that incomparably the greatest asset of the Democrats is the image of the party, among important voting groups, as the party of the "little guys" against the big shots. If being the champion of the people requires a little more, demagoguing than in 1952, so be it. Add the inherent advantages which any Democrat enjoys, notably the Southern vote, and the Stevenson victory formula looks rather formidable. The popular President is still unquestionably the front runner, but not to the point where the Republicans can afford to sit back happily on their haunches.

Sept. 25, 1896 — Combined labor interests gave William Jennings Bryan a great reception in Brooklyn last night. While waiting for the speaker the audience sang "You Shall Not Press the Crown of Thorns Upon the Toiler's Brow."

Sept. 25, 1916 — Ottawa: Canadians have subscribed more than $169 millions to the current war loan. The objective had been $100 millions. "Striking testimony to Canadian loyalty and financial strength," said Sir Thomas White, finance minister.

Expose Dishonesty

Although I cannot be in British Columbia in the near future to add my voice to that of those people who still cherish honesty, integrity and spirituality, I hope that your paper will continue to expose the dishonesty and the hypocrisy in the Social Credit government. It is very disappointing to learn that 46 per cent of the voting public of B.C. apparently tolerate "spiritual wickedness in high places."

Since coming to New Brunswick from B.C. about two weeks ago, I have come to appreciate to some extent the sincerity and the deep Christian conviction of many of the Maritime people. They are not rich materially and may not be progressive from an economic standpoint, but they are rich in character and spirit.

Premier Bennett is a product of this Atlantic province. Possibly he left here as a rebel and went west to make his fortunes, both financial and political. He seems to have got his reward but it's the sort of reward that turns a person's head. Where a man's treasure is, there will his heart be also, is our Lord's warning to those who seek the wrong rewards.

Experiment on Rats

From Atlantic City, N.J., comes news, reported in Sept. 19 issue of the Victoria Daily Times, that two army researchers have found a possible lead towards conditioning people against the generally fatal "wound shock" which accompanies severe war and accident injuries.

Rats were "conditioned" by giving them a series of electric shocks. They were then subjected to terrific tumbling in a special drum, which was whirled 500 times. The rats dropping from the top to the bottom of the drum with each turn.

After this sadistic performance we are told that since "electric shock is not a procedure to be lightly applied to a normal person," less drastic methods would have to be sought where applications to humans are concerned.

Of what value then was this experiment? We may assume that the necessity for care, re the giving of electric shocks to persons was known to the researchers. Nevertheless they willfully subjected terrified, helpless rats to a frightful and injurious ordeal.

No knowledge of real and lasting value can ever be obtained by means of callous cruelty to the sub-human kingdom.

Struggle Beginning

I would appreciate space to express my sincere thanks to all those who in any way aided my campaign in Oak Bay. I congratulate Mr. Gibbs upon having served as an MLA so as to maintain the support of a majority of Oak Bay voters. May he have a successful term in the next House.

I would emphasize that the CCF has faced far bigger odds than it faces in B.C. today. It is for practical purposes the sole Opposition in the House. As such it must speak for the majority vote against Social Credit. It is clear that the CCF, with almost 1.3 of the vote maintained through the years, is the only party with enough dedicated and consistent support to defeat Social Credit, and bring social justice, safety and sanity into B.C. politics.

People of liberal thought must now choose to support the CCF or by indecision to aid Social Credit.

I appeal to those who love liberty, care for humanity, and respect our parliamentary institutions: now is the time to stand up for your ideals; support the CCF, the only group now able to carry on the battle successfully.

I would like to meet those in Oak Bay riding who supported me. If you voted CCF I invite you to phone me at 46226, and let me thank you personally. We need your help in the struggle just beginning.

Slanted News?

I was impressed with the kindly attitude of Premier Bennett when he clasped my newspaper among the metropolitan press after his recent victory at the polls. I was greatly pleased that the public, in voting as it did, showed it was thinking for itself.

It is right that a newspaper should have an editorial policy, but when that policy is carried further, to the point of biased reporting to shape public opinion, the public is wronged. There have been many instances in the recent past, politically, of such unfair behavior on your part.

Reporting should be fair to the public's intelligence. Yours has not been. We should have factual reporting. Actually, that is what we pay for. Nothing could be quite so black politically as you have chosen to portray our government in B.C. Possibly you will conclude that your own "chickens have come home to roost" in the quite sad debacle of your Liberal party. Many would vote as they did because your prejudices were too apparent.

Please shape a fair and constructive editorial and reporting policy for the future. The public's political thinking should not be at the whim of the two or three people who control your paper.

The noted economist, Stuart Chase, once wrote that he only "existed" when doing drudgery of any kind, and he classed as drudgery, among other items, the reading of newspapers. Might I suggest you attempt to rise above such criticism.

Criticism Over-Emphasized

I believe if the candidates of the opposing political parties had hammered away at their platforms, which were good ones, instead of concentrating on mud-slinging, they'd doubtless have won more votes in Wednesday's election.

People are interested in hearing what a political party will do for them, not about the errors and shortcomings of opponents. Such points as 1. reduction of sales tax, 2. Modern housing for those of low income groups, 3. Publicly-owned natural gas distribution systems, 4. Relief of overcrowding in general hospitals, 5. Long-term low interest loans to B.C. farmers, together, especially with revision of anti-dumping legislation to protect them from competition of cheap U.S. farm imports. These and a number of others would have captured their imagination, but instead, as soon as they picked up a newspaper they saw the Secrets and their policies criticized.

There were many fine candidates. I very much doubt if any provincial election ever had better, but owing to the type of campaigns waged, they did not have an opportunity of winning the votes to which they were entitled, which is regrettable because we do not now have a sufficient number of opposition members to make for good government.

Campaigns were presented like legal cases. There was no allowance for feelings and emotions, yet the majority of any population is stirred by feelings and does not think nor analyze.

A Worthy Appeal

This letter is written, in the hope that it may be read by some retired man or woman, or others who have a car and who would be willing to give about three hours time on Wednesday afternoon assisting those who through accident or other causes, are either totally blind, or so near total blindness that they are accepted as registered members of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Every Wednesday the White Cane Club meets at 1609 Blanshard, from 2 to 4 p.m. with an average attendance of upwards of a hundred. Sometimes the meetings are of a social nature, others are addressed by some well known person, and all are made interesting by the program committee, and before the close of each meeting afternoon tea is served.

A number of volunteer ladies and gentlemen now bring these blind people from their homes, and take them back again after the meetings, but two or three more volunteers are needed.

You will not be asked or expected to contribute one penny to the funds of the club. You will be amazed at the cheerfulness and courage of its members and you will return to your home realizing perhaps, as never before what it would mean to you and your family, if you were to gradually or suddenly lose your sight.

If you will kindly phone, write or call, fullest details will be gladly given.

Cultural Cart Before Horse

From The Winnipeg Free Press

TWO news reports on Tuesday laid bare the bones of a problem that deserves more interest from Canadians than almost any other: how can we make our educational system more adequate to the needs of modern society? And how can we foster the full use of that educational system?

The two reports were these. A university president calculated that the present revenues, from all sources, of Canadian universities are $60 million a year. At the same time, the Canadian Arts Council recommended an expansion of CBC services which would entail raising the CBC's income, from taxes, to about $60 millions a year.

The Canadian Arts Council is a body more interested than any other in cultural achievement, in the fine flowers that grace a good educational system. Its wish to give the CBC more money springs from that entirely worthy interest. It wants the CBC to be able to provide full scope for Canadian talent to serve the Canadian public, both in entertainment and in the more high-brow cultural interests of the minority.

The aim is fine. But surely something has got badly out of proportion when the high-brows themselves want to spend as much on the CBC—that is, mainly, on entertainment—as is spent on the universities? It is, after all, the universities that are the soil of our intellectual and artistic achievements.

We may spend as much as we like on putting Canadian authors, Canadian actors, Canadian musicians on to the air and the TV screens, but the general quality of the performances will be low, the interested audience will be small and unimportant, unless both are firmly rooted in an adequate educational system.

It is no use trying to force the growth of fine flowers, by artificial heat and light, if you do not start with a rich soil. But that is precisely what a lot of our cultural nationalists are up to. Their motives are excellent, but good intentions are not enough. The high-brows, of all people, should be able to do some proper thinking about the best ways to their objective.

The development of a true, firm Canadian culture will be rooted in the improvement of our education and especially of our own universities, which could use to advantage twice their present $60 millions. Could the CBC use most of it with a fraction so much benefit? Some of our culture advocates would be well occupied in giving an honest answer to that question. Or are they too dominated by their own interest in the CBC, as an employer of existing highbrow talent, ranging in quality from good to less than indifferent?
